Why the MORRIS remains Ireland's most popular car.

Immediately on its introduction the Morris assumed a dominating position amongst popular priced cars—a position it continues to occupy. Year by year it has grown in popularity with Irish motorists. Merit has made it first favourite. Unsurpassed for reliability, for comfort, and for value, it still remains Ireland's most popular car. Models from £124 : 10s. plus carriage.

GARDEN, FARM, BEES, ETC.

THE PROPHET FLOWER.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Garden Correspondent says:—

In response to a recent query, we repeat our notice of this showy, hardy perennial, which came to us from the Caucasus in 1846. Arnebia echioides (cornuta) makes a neat little bush on the rockery, never in our experience exceeding a foot in height, its bright primrose-yellow flowers, each with deep purple spots on the petals, which mysteriously disappear in a few days, hence being responsible for the legend of having been touched by Mahomet, bearing the marks of his fingers. We found the Prophet Flower readily increased by cuttings of the strong roots in autumn, and there is no difficulty in raising it from seeds, although a difficulty in procuring them. Anyway, the better way probably is to get a plant from the nursery.

DRY, CLEAN RUNS.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Poultry Correspondent says:—

There is no reason why the smallest place should not be dry and clean. Those who are cramped for space should keep their hens altogether shut up on the intensive system, with a house large enough for roosting and scratching. But, if there is a run and it is of earth, it should first be thoroughly drained with a good, hard surface that will carry off the water, so that it will always look clean. A foot deep of stones or rubble of some kind, with a covering of gravel and sand or cinders, should keep it dry. It should be well rolled to make it firm. Of course, cement on the surface would be better. A filthy hen run is an eyesore to any garden, and fowls cannot be healthy or profitable in such places.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT.

BAD LANGUAGE.

(BEFORE MR. T. G. O'SULLIVAN.)

Margaret Redmond (20), Engine alley, no business, was charged by Guard 178 D with having been drunk and disorderly and using obscene language in Parkgate street, between midnight and one o'clock on Saturday morning.

She was fined 40s.

Bridget Whelan (73), residing in Meath street, was fined 20s. for having been drunk in Upper Kevin street on Friday evening. It was her sixth appearance on similar charges during the past six months.

ASSAULT ON GUARD.

Agnes Meehan (26) was fined 20s. for loitering in Lord Edward street between midnight and 1 o'clock on Saturday morning, and she was fined 20s. for assaulting Guard 163 B by spitting in his face while he was taking her in a cab from College street station to the Bridewell.

SOLICITOR CHARGED.

Mr. Morris McGrath (27), solicitor, Queen's Park, Monkstown, was charged by Station-Sergeant Driscoll and two other Guards (80 and 178 D) with having been drunk in charge of a motor car in the Phœnix Park between one and two o'clock that (Saturday) morning. He was also charged with having driven the car in a manner dangerous to the public.

Guard 178 D stated that at the hour mentioned he saw a motor car on the footway of the main road in the Park, and that the lights were being switched on and off. The defendant did not reply when spoken to, and when he got out of the car he staggered, and said that he was going to Monkstown.

Mr. P. H. O'Brien, for the defendant, said that his previous record was a clean one, and the Sergeant agreed.

He was remanded on bail of £10 until Wednesday.

INJURIES FOLLOW SKID.

FLOWERS AT TERENURE.

BIG SHOW DESPITE BAD SEASON.

KEEN COMPETITION.

There were over 600 entries for the annual show of the Terenure and Districts' Horticultural Society, held last Saturday at Ashfield, Rathfarnham, kindly lent by Mr. E. Clive Brookes. Notwithstanding the unfavourable weather recently experienced there was a remarkably good display of flowers, and in the classes for sweet pea, roses, begonias, and hardy cut flowers competition was keen. Among the trade exhibits a gold medal was awarded to the Donard Nursery Company for their display of flowering shrubs and herbaceous plants; a silver medal was awarded to Ballawley, Dundrum, for their exhibit of rock plants; while Messrs. M. Rowan and Company, Dublin, were given a bronze medal for their show of sweet pea and gladioli.

In a special tent were over 200 rabbits and cavies, shown under the auspices of the Irish Rabbit Fanciers' Society. This is the largest display of its kind made in Ireland for a considerable number of years, and Mr Woodgate, Bradford, crossed over specially to judge. All the principal breeds were represented, and the standard of merit was high. An exhibit here was the display of Irish-bred undyed rabbit furs. An enjoyable musical programme was rendered by the Metropolitan Civic Guard Band. Mr. R. M. Manifold acted with efficiency as Hon. Secretary, while Mr. Heney was a capable Press steward.

For the greater part of the day the weather was fine, but there was heavy rain about an hour before the show closed. The attendance was good.

The catering was by Mills.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

LONDON STOCK MARKET FEATURES.

ANOTHER EVENTFUL WEEK.

(From Our Financial Correspondent.)

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON, Saturday.

If the general public and members of the Stock Exchange are disposed to take a pessimistic view of the outlook, few, perhaps, will blame them. The Seven-Power Conference called to decide upon measures for the relief of Germany broke up with nothing more accomplished than the renewal for three months of temporary credits, which in any case could scarcely have been called in. The Bank rate has been advanced because of record heavy withdrawals of gold, and may be advanced still further if the exports continue. But in considering the adverse factors in the situation there is a tendency to lose sight of the fact that the world will apparently be spared the disturbing effects of War Debt and reparation payments for at least a year.

THE GERMAN SITUATION.

This will help Germany to the extent of £80,000,000, and it should benefit some other countries to a smaller extent. If, therefore, the extension of credit is sufficient to enable Germany to turn round, thus placing the country on the path of recovery from the present unsatisfactory state of affairs, which should be possible with the measures adopted to check the transfer of credits, there would be much less reason for taking a pessimistic view of the future. At the worst, presumably, the necessary financial assistance will be provided by Great Britain and America. What appears to be needed as much as anything is a revival in trade, with its corollary of a rise in commodity prices.

BANK RATE.

It is to be hoped that little time will elapse before the world of finance is able to determine whether the 3½ p.c. Bank rate will be sufficient to stem the tide of gold exports. Judging from the response of the principal foreign exchanges last Thursday, the prospects are encouraging. Much will depend upon France. Is that country taking gold, not because it has a bad attack of nerves, but for political motives? The question is being asked in the City, and, if the answer is in the affirmative, it is to be presumed that a 4½ p.c. or 5 p.c. Bank rate would not "stop the rot." Actually, France does not need the gold, for previously she had much more than is required for the note circulation and the settlement of trade balances. The additional millions lately taken from us will do her no good, and in view of recent developments it is felt that it would be better if London depended less upon foreign credits in the future.

YIELD FROM GILT-EDGED STOCKS.

A higher Bank rate means an adjustment of prices of fixed interest securities, so that the return they afford to new purchasers is increased. How much a British Government loan should be reduced in price because of an advance of 1 p.c. in the official minimum it is impossible to say, for, as a rule, various other circumstances have to be taken into account—at present the uncertainties surrounding the situation in Central Europe among others. It may be pointed out, however, that when 3½ p.c. Conversion Loan touched the year's highest price of 85½, the return, without making any allowance for accrued interest, was £4 1s. 9d. per cent. With the subsequent drop to 80 this figure was increased to £4 7s. 6d. per cent. The 5 p.c. War Loan did not fall nearly as much—merely from 104⅞ to 103, which meant an increase in its yield from £4 15s. 6d. to £4 17s. per cent.

MARKET FACTORS.

It would be foolish to attempt to gauge the probable course of the gilt-edged market in the next few weeks. Much will depend upon how things develop in Germany, and much upon the future movements of gold and their effect upon the value of money, while a further factor may be a continued flow of available capital to this section because of the distrust of more speculative securities. The ultimate deciding point is the value of money, and, as the City must be prepared for a period of relatively dearer credit, it would, perhaps, be safest to assume that the trend of prices in the future will be downward. This should not be regarded as a reason for sales by holders, unless they consider that they will be able to get back their stock at a lower figure. This expectation might not be realised, and meanwhile those who sold would lose interest upon their money.

DEPOSIT RATES.

It is scarcely likely that much more money will be placed on deposit with the banks now that the latter allow 1½ p.c., against 1 p.c. for such funds. This rate only applies to the London Metropolitan area, and in other places it has been possible to get 2½ p.c. when the owner has exercised a certain amount of pressure. Apart from that question, much of the deposits represent funds placed in the banks temporarily, and safety rather than the interest rate is the main consideration. This is shown by the fact that when the allowance was reduced to 1 p.c. there was no perceptible diminution in the total of the funds. The increase now announced is certainly not sufficient to induce a withdrawal of money now invested in gilt-edged stocks, for, as shown above, even when 3½ p.c. Conversion touched the highest price of the year the return was still over 4 1/16 p.c.

BANKERS' CHARGES.

In connection with these matters the advance in the Bank rate to 3½ p.c. is not likely to affect trade. Unfortunately, there is not a great deal to be affected, and in any case a difference of a rise of 1 p.c. in the Bank rate upon industrial costs has been greatly exaggerated. Moreover, as the banks did not reduce their charge for overdrafts when the official minimum was lowered from 3 p.c. to 2½ p.c., they will make no advance now that the rate has gone up to 3½ p.c. It is still 1 p.c. over Bank rate, with a minimum of 5 p.c. But, as in the case of deposit allowances, there are exceptions to this practice, so much depending upon the borrower and the character of the security that he can provide.

THE OUTLOOK.

Sufficient has been said above to indicate that the outlook for Stock Exchange securities is particularly uncertain, and as the present account will run for three weeks, and will cover the August Bank Holiday, business is likely to remain very quiet. Recent events have not strengthened the confidence of investors, and especially speculative investors, and the ability to support markets has been weakened by the heavy depreciation that has occurred this year in various directions, particularly in Foreign Government Bonds and most Railway securities. The probable course of gilt-edged stocks is indicated above. Home Industrial Shares of the best type were not greatly influenced by last week's untoward events, but dollar shares more or less faithfully reflected the course of prices in New York. The best South African Mining Shares are probably worth buying, and so far that section has shown as much steadiness as any.

DIVIDENDS AND REPORTS.

ALLUTA RUBBER AND PRODUCE—The report for the year ended March 31 last shows that there was a loss of £3,616, which compares with a loss of £616 for the preceding twelve months. A balance of £986 was brought in, while an amount of £4,000 is transferred from reserve, leaving, after deducting the loss for the year, a credit balance of £1,370 to be carried forward. The last dividend paid was for 1928-'29, when the distribution was 5 per cent.

CROPPER AND CO. (Manufacturers and printers of folding boxes.)—In the year to June 30 last the net profit increased from £29,575 to £30,313. The directors propose to raise the dividend on the Ordinary shares from 5 per cent. to 7½ per cent., and to carry £10,000 to reserve. This will leave £4,755 to go over, against £5,683 brought in.

FISHERS FOILS.—After writing off £1,079 for special advertising, £465 for patent fees and expenses in connection with the sale of American and Canadian patents, and £3,787 depreciation, and reserving £574 for income tax, the accounts for the year to April 30, 1931, show a debit balance of £8,047. For the previous period of fifteen months the net profit was £1,102.

GILLETTE SAFETY RAZOR—Messrs. Aldred and Co., Ltd. (Inc. in Canada), London agents, report cabled advice that net earnings for the six months ended June 30 last, after interest, depreciation, taxes, and a special reserve of $1,200,000 for obsolescence, were $2,682,345, equivalent to 95 cents per Common share. The company states that at June 30 last it held in its treasury $4,238,000 of its own ten-year 5 per cent. Convertible Debentures.

HOMOPHONIA GRAMOPHONES—A loss of £9,926 is shown in the accounts for the year ended March 31 last, to which is added the dividend of £2,200 paid on the Preference shares for the six months to December 30, 1930, making a total of £12,126. Deducting the balance of £1,706 brought in and the sum of £1,557 transferred from taxation reserve, there remains a debit of £8,863 to carry forward. The year's loss includes £5,875 provided for bad debts and reserve for doubtful debts. A sum of £903 was brought in, to which is added £500 transferred from taxation reserve, leaving, after deducting the loss for the twelve months, a credit balance of £463 to carry forward. In the preceding year there was a loss of £394, and £1,000 was written off buildings and machinery, while the last dividend paid was for 1928-'29, when a distribution of 5 per cent. was made.

SANDOWN PARK.—Interim dividend of 3 per cent., less tax, on Ord. Shares.

MANCHESTER MARKETS' REVIEW.

BACON FAIRLY STRONG.

(From Our Financial Correspondent.)

Although business generally can by no means be described brisk, there is, if anything, a rather better undercurrent to note in most departments of the provision trade, but the Lancashire holidays, coupled with the uncertain state of the weather, are affecting the position to a certain extent. The Danish official quotation has been wired five kroner lower, and "top" now stands at 190 kroner per 100 kilos. At the corresponding period of last year the figure was 247 kroner, and in 1929 291 kroner. According to reports from Denmark the market in that country was completely cleared last week, and, with a decidedly firm tendency, an official advance in prices was expected this week, but the financial crisis in Germany and gloomy prospects of trade generally in that country had a subduing influence on the export trade. In spite of the uncertainty as to money transactions with Germany, the Danish exporters decided to execute orders from their regular buyers in Germany, at least, as far as contract butters were concerned, in anticipation that the German banks would soon reopen, and that payment for imported articles of food would not long be deferred. The correction of this view has been partly verified. The banks reopened and remittances came through, though slowly. The spot market for all descriptions of butter rules steady. All Continental makes declined in sympathy with the official quotation, but no change was recorded in Irish creameries and Colonial, both of which are now dearer than Swedish and Finnish, and almost on a parity with Danish. Imports of butter into the United Kingdom during the first half of the present year amounted to 3,986,252 cwts., compared with 3,609,372 cwts. in the corresponding period of last year, and 3,542,746 cwts. in January-June, 1929. Denmark is still the largest individual contributor of butter supplies to this country, closely followed by New Zealand and Australia. Exports have considerably increased from the latter sources during the present year, as compared with 1930. It is satisfactory to note that the production of butter within the Empire is making rapid strides, and this year constitutes a record. Most other countries have shipped less butter to this country this year so far as compared with 1930. A satisfactory clearance has been effected for all descriptions of bacon, including Irish, at firm figures, but otherwise there are few features of outstanding interest to record. Spot prices for Irish continue more or less nominal, but at the weekly meeting of the local Bacon Committee it was decided to advance Danish and Swedish 2s., Polish 5s., and Dutch 2s. to 4s. per cwt., according to selection. After having gone through a long period of depression, the cheese market now seems to show signs of stability. All reports go to show that the low level of prices during the past two or three months have at last attracted an active consumptive demand, which is likely to be maintained if the general quality of Canadian and New Zealand cheese on offer keeps up to the standard. Owing to the high prices asked for English and Irish eggs demand has been quieter, but more movement is reported for Danish and Dutch new laid, which are arriving in very fresh condition.

The Manchester Cattle market is still closed to Irish live stock, and all descriptions of home-fed were shown in rather smaller numbers, as compared with the previous week. A steady demand was experienced for fat cattle at about late rates. Practically no choice small sheep were offered, but lambs were in good supply, and easier to buy. Heavy arrivals of Irish pigs affected business materially at the Manchester Pig market. Trade was irregular in consequence, and prices for all descriptions were lower on the week. Business at the Manchester Dead Meat market has been on the quiet side. Home-killed beef ruled fairly steady, but, owing to large offerings of Irish lambs, prices for this commodity showed a reduction at the close.

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

CABLES AND WIRELESS.

"DRASTIC MEASURES."

In a leading article the Financial News says:—There is, so far, no hint of what the "drastic measures" are likely to be which were referred to in the report of Imperial and International Communications, Ltd. Nor do we propose to guess at them here. But, now that drastic measures are in sight, it is important that shareholders and the market should realise that the grandiose capital exchange scheme by which Cables and Wireless, Ltd., was brought into being was based on hopelessly faulty assumptions. Slump or no slump, the £8,655,977 of "B" Stock is, according to any calculation of probability, practically worthless, and the "A" Stock might, in normal times, be worth from a third to half of its par value.

After reviewing the sources of revenue, the Financial News adds:—Thus the revenues of the merger on our liberal estimate for normal times would be:—

I. and I.C. Standard Revenue	£1,865,000
Marconi Manufacturing, etc.	275,000
Cables Investments	565,000
Total	£2,705,000

Out of this provision has to be made for those Cable and Marconi shareholders who stood outside the merger last year. They took £22,034—say £22,000—so that the net available merger revenue would be £2,683,000. On the towering capitalisation of Cables and Wireless, Ltd., this does not go far. The 5½ per cent. Preference dividend requires £1,273,841, leaving £1,409,159 for the "A" Ordinary Stock, or 6.8 per cent., without allowing anything for reserves at all. The "B" Stock does not see available earnings appearing over its horizon, even on the generous estimates postulated. Conceivably the Communications or the Marconi Manufacturing revenue might jump beyond expectations—the Marchese Marconi has, probably, not exhausted his surprises—but on any reasonable calculation of probability the present capital structure is condemned.

THE OUTLOOK.

For the time being nothing counts in the City but the pressing need for checking the German crisis before it assumes a more serious form (writes The Sunday Times). Temporary measures are to be applied, and when the Conference reassembles in October ways must be found of preventing a repetition of the breakdown of credit in Central Europe. The great gold-owning countries—the United States and France—who had been urged to increase their foreign loans to counteract the lopsided distribution of the world's gold, preferred instead to accumulate still more gold. No advantage can accrue to the world from a policy which is condemned by all international financiers of repute, but there are political forces working which are too strong for the bankers, and rampant nationalism for the time being makes international co-operation impossible.

The Bank of England's gold stock has been depleted with startling rapidity, and the insistent and unnecessary demand for dollars and francs necessitated a rise in Bank rate to 3½ per cent. If this does not avail, it will be raised further, but the improvement in the sterling exchange as against dollars and francs has created a more hopeful feeling in this connection. No satisfaction can be derived from this development, except by those who are now able to employ their surplus funds at a more profitable rate. There is a feeling in the City that the attempt to settle the German crisis has been bungled. As usual, the mixture of politicians with business men is about as adhesive as that of oil and water, and the former, while claiming credit for the result, have left the latter to solve the real difficulties.

RAILWAY DIVIDENDS.

Almost the only redeeming feature in the interim statements published by the Home Railway companies for the first half of the current year is the saving effected in working costs (says The Observer). Stockholders of the Southern Railway and the Metropolitan Railway companies are to receive reduced dividends as compared with this time last year. The Southern Company, although conveying approximately the same number of passengers as a year ago, showed a decrease of £400,000 in passenger receipts mainly because of reduced fares. The decrease is accentuated by a drop in goods receipts of £100,000. Other receipts have to be taken into consideration, but the net result is that the revenue for the first half of the year is about £150,000 less than before, despite a saving in working expenditure of over £300,000.

The company this year has to meet a dividend on £3,000,000 additional Guaranteed Preference Stock issued in April, 1930, which requires £75,000 more, and with only £68,000 brought in from the previous year the amount available for dividend on the Ordinary Stock is approximately £300,000 less than in the previous year. As a result, and taking into consideration the uncertain conditions prevailing throughout the world, the directors have decided to pay only 1½ per cent. on the 5 per cent. Preferred Ordinary Stock for the six months, as compared with 2½ per cent. the corresponding period of last year. Some satisfaction may be gained from the statement that the second half of the year is usually more profitable than the first, which may mean that the distribution for the second half of the year will be a little more encouraging than the one just announced. The Preference Stock became a somewhat nominal market following the statement, and the price dropped heavily to about 48, though rallying later to about 50.

Substantial savings in costs are also recorded by the London and North-Eastern Railway. This company is paying interim dividends for the half year on all the Guaranteed and Preference stocks down to and including the 5 per cent. Redeemable Preference. This, however, is only possible through the assistance of an undisclosed amount transferred from the general reserve fund. The total decrease in receipts for the first half-year amounts to £3,130,000. The estimated decrease in expenditure over the same period amounts to £2,140,000. It is stated that the state of trade on the company's system is worse than it has been at any time since the amalgamation of the railways. This particularly affects the heavy industry, which normally contributes the greater part of the company's freight revenue. The interim dividends this year require rather more than last time, owing to the fact that the recently issued 5 per cent. Redeemable Preference stock to an amount of £4,014,400 ranks for the full half-year's distribution. This result may be regarded as reasonably encouraging, but the future depends largely on a revival in trade.

The Metroplitan Railway directors are paying a dividend of 1 per cent. on the Consolidated Ordinary stock this year, against 1½ per cent. previously. An interim of 1½ per cent. is maintained on the Surplus Land stock. Traffics for the first half of the year showed a drop of £28,000, but, owing to economies, the net profit for the same period is only £6,000 less. This company also has to meet increased charges owing to an issue of Debenture stock, while the directors state that they have to take into consideration the costs incurred by the company arising out of the London Transport Bill. This company will probably be merged at a later date in the London passenger transport scheme.

THE PETROL WAR.

Cuts in petrol prices and every evidence of a petrol war is disconcerting to investors in oil shares (writes The Observer). Most of the big companies, both distributors and producers, had to reduce their dividends last year. Immediate prospects are by no means encouraging, but for the present the market for oil shares does not show any pronounced weakness. The American Petroleum Institute recently declared that the petrol stocks in the United States should be reduced by some 30,000,000 barrels. This cut is considered necessary in order to stabilise the industry. According to recent figures, petrol stocks in America now total some 37,377,000 barrels. This goes against 45,937,000 barrels at this time last year. The reduction is a result of an agreement arrived at between refining companies to reduce output. The dumping of petrol on this side is considered part of the plan to reduce stocks on the other side. It is contended in certain quarters that there is no cut-throat competition between American and British oil interests, but it is believed that one of the main objects is to meet the excessive Russian competition. The trouble of the industry is over-production. The figures given above refer solely to American holdings, and take no consideration of the stocks held in other parts of the world. American petrol stocks have been reduced from the peak level of nearly 54,000,000 barrels in April, 1930; but it is obvious that much further reduction is necessary before stability is reached in the industry. Meanwhile, those interested in oil shares are faced with the possibility of still lower dividends.

FINANCIAL INDICATORS RISE.

Both the Evening Standard barometers register an improvement this week despite the uncertainty which has overshadowed all markets.

Commodities have risen nearly 3 points, mainly because of a rally in cotton, sugar, and tea prices.

The index of British industrial Ordinary share prices has recovered a fraction of last week's decline, over one half of the 30 selected shares having remained steady and unchanged throughout the prevailing uncertainty.

WOOL FREE FROM TAR.

AGITATION IN THE FREE STATE.

By a Special Correspondent.

Special significance attaches to a sale by Messrs. Ganly, Sons and Co. which took place in Dublin on Friday of wool guaranteed free from tar, in view of steps that are to be taken—including, possibly, legislation by the Government—to improve the condition of Irish wool which is placed on the market.

In the Colonies wool is thoroughly scoured before being marketed, and so cleansed, not only of tar, but of all other impurities. The presence of tar on wool has led to constant complaints from textile manufacturers, owing to the difficulty of removing it by washing, and, incidentally, the fact that wool is frequently damaged by the hard scouring that has to be done in attempting to remove it. On the other hand, the slightest trace of tar will ruin the wool if not removed.

As a result, a strong agitation has developed in the Free State for measures to put an end to the practice of using tar, or materials containing tar, for the branding of sheep, and I understand that there is a distinct probability of such measures being embodied in a bill which the Minister for Agriculture will bring before the Dail in the near future.

Close on two tons of guaranteed wool were offered at the auction, and there was a very big clearance, ninety per cent. of the quantity offered being disposed of at prices which ran from a halfpenny to a penny per pound higher than those offered for wool of the same class which did not bear the guarantee.

English merchants who attended the sale were greatly impressed by the quality of the wool, and expressed their appreciation in speeches at the close. They were unanimous in hoping that wool would be offered on similar conditions at future sales.

U.S. MARKETS.

HEAVY CLOSE.

Reuter's Telegrams.

NEW YORK, Saturday.

Following a weak opening yesterday's decline was resumed, sentiment becoming unsettled owing to the belief that a reduction in the U. S. Steel Corporation's dividends would prove an important factor in determining the action of numerous other companies.

Business turned very dull and declines generally were very narrow, but with many prominent traders out of town price trends were without much significance. However, it was notable that U. S. Steel did not encounter any further important selling, declining only slightly. If, as has been suggested in some quarters, the widely-reported forecasts of a cut in the Steel Corporation's dividend have been put out as a feeler for their effects upon financial sentiment, the limited selling which ensued might convince the directors that a reduction would do little harm at present.

Meanwhile, sterling on London improved, but Wall Street banking circles regard the fresh drain on London gold as distinctly unfortunate. The close was heavy.

HIDES AND LEATHER.

(SPECIAL REPORT.)

Steady conditions prevailed at the Bermondsey hide auction this week, with price changes few and unimportant. Best clear ox remained unchanged, and the only alterations in seconds were declines of ⅛d. in 60-69lb., and 59lb. and under to 4¼d. and 3½d., respectively. First warbled ox were unchanged, except 60-69lb., which fell ⅛d. to 4½d. Seconds were unaltered. First clear cows and warbled cows and bulls showed no change. Calf was occasionally the turn dearer, with first 17-24lb. advanced ⅛d. to 8½d. Foreign hides were in poor request, and prices generally ruled easier. B.A. Americanos sold at 5⅞d., and Cuyabanoa at 4d. The demand for good quality sole leather remained fairly active, and with no pressure of supplies, prices generally ruled steady. There was a moderate inquiry for repairing bends, chiefly 8-10lb. Common descriptions of sole leather were difficult to move, and prices were occasionally slightly in buyers' favour. Holders of offal have offered less freely, and prices have become somewhat steadier. Upper leathers were in moderate demand, with patent the best seller at the moment. Prices remained steady for home productions, though Russian coloured kid and box calf were offered at low rates.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Saturday.

Wheat values declined under scattered commission house selling, while lack of confidence and limited buying power were evident. Trade was light, the market being further depressed by a slow cash demand, realising, moderate hedge pressure, selling against bids and a decreasing domestic mill demand. Moderate general selling by elevator and cash interests, overnight selling orders, and commission house pressure of December option caused early recessions in maize. Later, the market reacted partially on reports of heat damage in Iowa, a forecast for warmer weather, and short covering. Rye values eased in sympathy with wheat, while oats declined under liquidation.

NOTES FROM THE "NATIONAL."

"TRAVELS IN FRANCE."

STUDENTS ABROAD.

By a Correspondent.

GRACEFUL antirrhinums now rear their flowering forms beside the wall on the front lawn. The beautiful and softening effect that they should have on the stern, dull-grey stone of which our College is built is completely spoiled by a high fencing of wire netting which surrounds them. One imagines them as tender maidens captured by the old stone Cyclops, who glowers down on them from the eves and pillars above, and put in the stocks as a scornful reminder to the tender-hearted students who pass that fair helplessness has no effect on faces made of stone.

YOUNG YOUNGS.

Many of our colleagues are abroad this summer. As usual, no professor has so many of his students away as Dr. Chauviré. By his own efforts and those of his assistants, Mrs. Sean T. O'Kelly, Miss Ellen Hamet, and Dr. Louis Roche, he has made a wonderful connection throughout the length and breadth of France, and, whether a student wishes to spend his summer exploring the bewildering beautiful passes of the Pyrenees or discussing labour problems with the miners of Alsace, he has only to mention the matter to Monsieur le Professeur, and he has fifty of the pleasantest houses in the district to choose from.

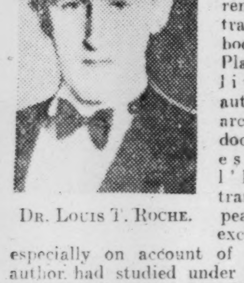
Professor Chauvire.

Miss Aileen O'Kelly, who has just written from Lille, says that she thinks it a town of too many factories, but consoles herself by remarking that, though this is bad for pleasure, it is good for work. Her companion, Miss Kathleen Mahon, who has plenty of very youthful company, finds her surroundings uproariously entertaining. Miss Marie Grehan is in Paris. She is attending lectures at the Alliance Française, and, contrary to what we might expect from her environment, she has not relaxed for a moment since she went there. I understand that Miss Grehan is to play the leading part in an Irish play to be produced in Loretto Hall early next term.

Mr. P. Rowan is at Pau, in the South. Pau is one of the most beautiful of the old French towns, and is haunted by clinging memories of Henry of Navarre, who was born here, and whose castle still remains to warn the traveller that this is hallowed ground — the birth-place of the first Napoleon.

GERMANY AND WALES.

Other languages have their wandering devotees, too. Miss Maura Mooney, for instance, has taken up her headquarters at Bonn, where she will learn to speak the German tongue; Miss Nancy Cronan favours Wales, and so we run down a long list. Mr. Sean McInerney, who will have his degree examination in September, has decided not to travel at all this year. He has taken the novel, but extremely wise, course of retiring for the summer to his old school, Rockwell, where he can pursue his bookish toil undisturbed.



Dr. Louis T. Roche.

Dr. Louis Roche, by the way, will be remembered as the translator of the book on Rabelais by Plattard, the greatest living French authority on the arch-priest of the doctrine, "Le rire est propre de l'homme." The translation, which appeared early this year, excited great interest, especially on account of the fact that the author had studied under Professor Plattard in the University of Poitiers. Apropos of this, I met one of the visiting students to U.C.D. the other day. He is Signor Serero Scalori, of Italy, who came some months ago to study the banking system of the Irish Free State, and, at the same time, to perfect his knowledge of the English language. He tells me that he is remaining in Ireland for the summer—but not because of our climate.

TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIPS.

Mr. Jack Sheehan.

The members of the tennis club virtually have completed the eliminating rounds of the championship competition. Only one semi-final remains to be decided—that between Mr. R. McHugh and Mr Hugh Fitzgerald. The winner will contest the Men's Championship with Mr. Jack Sheehan. The finalists in the women's singles will be Miss Tess O'Donnell and Miss Eilis Lennon.

Miss Tess O'Donnell.

Both matches will be played during the first week of August. Recent weather conditions, however, have caused the tennis courts to become practically deserted, and, if a slight improvement in this respect is not noticeable before the date fixed, the contests may have to be postponed till September, when, for the first time, apart from the Horse Show, students begin to trickle back to town.

GOVERNING BODY.

Mr. John W. Bacon, Secretary to the Governing Body, has notified all graduates on roll of the college that the dissolution of the body will take place at the end of this year, when a new body will be formed.

I extend my warmest congratulations to Mr. George O'Callaghan, M.Sc., on his marriage to Miss Senior. Mr. O'Callaghan was as well liked as he was well known in U.C.D.

While playing in a parents' day cricket match at Solihull Grammar School, Birmingham, on Saturday, Mr. Frank Miller, art master at the school for twenty years, and previously on the staff of the training ship Worcester, collapsed and died. He was sixty-three years of age.

Miss Irene Pitt, the nineteen years old daughter of Mr. Archie Pitt, the theatrical manager, and step-daughter of Miss Gracie Fields, was married to Mr. Louis Ross, an orchestral leader, at Hampstead yesterday.

THE SCREEN.

STAGE EXPERIENCE ESSENTIAL.

TEMPERAMENTAL "STARS."

GRADUALLY those who control the affairs of film production at Hollywood are beginning to realise that with the coming of "talkies," the dialogue of a film is of greater importance than its scenario; soon they will realise that the proper speaking of the dialogue is of at least as much importance as its inherent qualities. Only the legitimate stage can give players the experience which will enable them to "time" dialogue properly, because only in the legitimate theatre can the player get what is known as the "feel" of the audience. More and more the "talkies" must approximate to the technique of the legitimate stage, and possibly that is one of the reasons why a group of film magnates is engaging in theatrical enterprises in America. It is certainly the reason why the practice of spending a portion of every year on the stage is steadily increasing among film "stars." The newer contracts give to actors definite periods during which they may make appearances on the stage, and it is now usual for four months in each year to be allotted to these appearances. In order to be able to use dialogue dramatically, screen "stars" must keep the theatre flourishing for their training.

For many years film producers have been at the mercy of their "stars," usually highly-paid young women possessing box-office appeal, who have acquired the habit of walking off the "set" whenever they want to vent a dislike for anything. This form of childishness was known to directors, and used by publicity agents, as temperament, and although directors did their best to turn the tantrums into box-office values, they very often lost a lot of time and money through such whimsies. Now, at last, one of the leading producing companies has taken a definite stand against temperamental antics, and as a precaution keep at hand young understudies, who will take the place of the piqued "star" at a moment's notice. Now that Paramount has taken this decision, other companies most probably will follow its lead, and soon the temperamental actress will have ceased to trouble producers. Clara Bow recently suffered because of a display of temperament, and Nancy Carroll is reported to be the first victim of the new Paramount policy. In this respect film producers are accepting the precedent of the theatre.

"THE FIERCE MASAI."

The grandeur and the terror of Africa are in the picture which is the principal item of the Metropole programme this week. "Africa Speaks" is the kind of travel film that will make audiences feel as well as see; for it reveals the most intimate and terrifying aspects of that dark Continent. Kipling has sung of the "fierce Masai," that most courageous of African tribes, but in "Africa Speaks" the tribe is presented in all its most chivalrous bravery. The barbaric ferocity of Africa; its freaks, and its most hideous practices, all are shown in a picture that will never be forgotten. Such scenes as the lion hunt, the plague of locusts, the elusive pigmies and the duck-billed women of Ubangi impress themselves upon the imagination; but the delightful studies of rare and graceful animals charm the eye of the beholder. In "Men Without Law," the whirlwind rider, Buck Jones, is to be seen in one of his exhilarating cowboy films.

At the Grafton, "Dreyfus" and "How He Lied to Her Husband" are retained for a second week. "Dreyfus" probably contains the best acting yet seen in "talkies," but as a reconstruction of one of the most disturbing episodes of recent European history it should not be overlooked. The first G.B.S. "talkie," "How He Lied to Her Husband," is a most delightful film, in which Shaw's whimsicality is splendidly maintained by a fine cast.

GALSWORTHY AGAIN.

The famous Galsworthy play of the struggle between the old order and the new has been transferred to the screen with fine effect by Alfred Hitchcock. "The Skin Game," which is the principal film at the Theatre Royal this week, shows the Hillcrist family in active revolt against the invasion of their land by the pottery-owning Hornblowers. A "skin" fight between the two families results, and neither has any scruples in the effort to win. The film contains a number of excellent performances, of which the most remarkable is that of Edmund Gwenn as Hornblower. The fight between the Hillcrists and the Hornblowers is now an old wives' tale, but it makes an exceedingly entertaining film. "The Gateway of India" is another of the splendid series of travel films for which the Theatre Royal has become noted.

The programme at the Sackville this week consists of "Outside the Law," in which Mary Nolan takes the leading part in a drama of fear and grief. The second film, "Mountain Justice," shows Ken Maynard and Kathryn Crawford in a thrilling film of the Wild West.

"BANJO WIZARD."

The picture chosen for this week at the Capitol is a light-hearted farce, entitled "Only Saps Work." The story is concerned with a health farm, in which "crooks" fail to be crooked, and detectives are only too apt at dectecting. Leon Errol and Stuart Erwin can always be relied upon to produce laughter from the most reluctant. Charles Ruggles is another laugh-maker in "The Hot Air Merchant." Probably the outstanding feature of the Capitol programme this week is the return, and farewell, visit of the famous Eddie Peabody and his banjo. In the "1812" overture and "The Rhapsody in Blue" he will be assisted by the excellent Capitolians.

At the Pavilion, Dun Laoghaire, the programme for the first three days consists of "Midnight Mystery" and Richard Dix in "Shooting Straight." From Thursday the thrilling film, "Within the Law," shows Joan Crawford in a very unusual situation. How vengeance may be wrought against society "within the law" is amply demonstrated.

REVENGE AND ROMANCE.

At the Corinthian this week is another of those very exciting stories for which this cinema has recently been noted. In "Fair Warning" George O'Brien will be found again in one of his thrilling rôles, where in seeking vengeance he manages to strike upon romance. This is probably the best O'Brien film yet offered, and all whose tastes run in this direction will make a point of seeing "Fair Warning."

Within the next few weeks many of the most remarkable films of the year will be shown in Dublin cinemas. Marie Dressler and Polly Moran will be seen in "Reducing," and Charlie Chaplin in his latest masterpiece, "City Lights." "Resurrection" will bring John Boles again to public notice, and "Viennese Nights" will reveal the coloured vivacity of old and new Vienna in one of its tuneful moods. It is probable also that the famous Paramount version of "Tom Sawyer," with Jackie Coogan as Tom, will be shown in Dublin in the near future.

PARISH CHURCH RE-OPENED.

DECORATED AT COST OF £500.

Harold's Cross Parish Church was re-opened for Divine Service yesterday, after being closed for six weeks for the purpose of redecoration. The interior of the building has been repaired and painted, and at the back of the Holy Table has been inset in the wall a beautiful panel in mosaic, carried out in white, blue and gold, with a scroll bearing the words: "This do in remembrance of Me." At the four corners of the tablet are the heads of the Four Evangelists. The cost of the scheme of decoration was £500.

Preaching at the Service at 11.30, the Archbishop of Dublin spoke on their duty as members of the church, and congratulated the congregation on the generous manner in which they had subscribed the money necessary for the work of decoration. He also referred to the beautiful mosaic panel.

There was a very large attendance of parishioners, and among the clergy present were the Rev. Chancellor Ledoux, the Rev. C. C. W. Duggan, Rector of the parish, and the Rev. A. S. Bluett.

A photograph taken after the marriage, at St. James's Church, Spanish place, London, of Miss Rosaleen Byrne, elder daughter of Dr. and Mrs. P. J. Byrne, of Clonmel, and Mr. Hilton St. John Smith, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Verney Smith, of Jos, Nigeria. The bridesmaids were Miss Gwendoline Byrne, sister of the bride; Miss Violet Wenger, cousin; Miss Turville Petre and Miss Marjory Jordan.

IRISHMAN'S DIARY.

Moore's Modesty : The Dublin Audience : Foreigner's Luck.
A Bryan Cooper Biography : The Commercial Room.
"Woman's Sceptre."

The Dublin Audience.

Without going so far as to say that Irishmen have lost all feeling for romance, I am firmly of the opinion that Dublin audiences are at least as cynical as any audience in the world. The fact impresses me more and more every time I go to a show or a cinema—particularly the latter. I saw recently an incident in a film which would have drawn angry tears and loud expressions of disapproval from at least half of the audience ten years ago. On this occasion it inspired nothing but vaguely suppressed titters and here and there ribald laughter. I wonder why this should be so; for I doubt very much if the past ten years have inspired any very noticeable change in the national character; and, in any case, cynicism is not a characteristic of Irishmen when they are otherwise engaged than in assisting at a show.

I have not noticed the same tendency in audiences elsewhere in Ireland, or in any English towns that I have visited recently. Perhaps, the explanation may be that the Dublin audience has a keener sense of trash than other audiences, and a surer eye for picking out sticky sentiment from true.

A Bryan Cooper Biography.

I am interested to hear that a biography of the late Major Bryan Cooper is in active preparation, and is likely to be published during the coming publishing season. The late Major Cooper touched life at so many points, and took an active part in so many and varied affairs, that his biography will necessarily contain vivid and intimate details of some of the outstanding people and events in recent Irish history. For some years he was a member of the House of Commons for South County Dublin, and later was a member of Dáil Eireann, from the beginning of its career, for the same constituency. Between these services he took an active part in the Great War with the Dublin Fusiliers, and afterwards wrote an official account of the adventures of his battalion. Throughout his life he was one of the most consistent supporters of the theatre and drama in Ireland, and was connected with every effort for the production of the great plays of the world by Irish companies. He adapted several plays from the French, which were subsequently staged in Dublin, and he made many successful appearances as an amateur actor. He was one of the most popular members of Dáil Eireann, and it is possible that his biographer will have something piquant to say about the famous Jinks incident, when the Government was saved only by the casting vote of the Speaker.

The Late Major Bryan Cooper.

"Woman's Sceptre."

Since fans have come into fashion again their fair wielders might do well to acquaint themselves with the technology of what used to be designated "woman's sceptre." Every part of a fan has its own name. There is the "bois," or stick; the "feuille," or mount; the "brins," or separate laths of the stick; the "panaches," or outer guards; the "tête," which holds the pivot, and so on—terms reminiscent, of course, of the land where the fan attained its highest standard of perfection.

Sir Richard Steele, two centuries ago, wrote of the power of the fan, and imagined a company of ladies organised to learn fan-drill in its deadliest form for the final conquest and subjugation of man. To resist them he could only suggest a company of gentlemen with snuff-boxes.

The Commercial Room.

In the course of perigrinations about the countryside I have had recently occasion to use many small hotels, and I have been struck by the fact that nowadays the old distinction between Coffee Room and Commercial Room has passed away except in the matter of prices. It would appear upon the surface that the distinction was snobbish and well deal, and the casual hotel user might surmise that the Coffee Room visitor was the exclusive party. In fact, the reverse used to be the case. The "Commercials" used to maintain a very aloof attitude towards other guests, and no one dared use the Commercial Rooms unless invited by their users. Nor was that invitation uncoveted. The great moment was that of the evening meal, when the Commercials dined together about the long table, practising the customs that were in use in the old ordinaries of London. Everyone shared alike in the expense of the meal, no matter what was eaten or drunk, and about that board there were exchanged experiences which would have been invaluable to any Board of Trade for the light that they threw upon local trade conditions; and then as the decanter or tankard or punch-bowl circulated at the dictates of the oldest traveller of the road, who was ipso facto doyen of the table, song and story and anecdote followed one another in rapid succession. A Coffee Room visitor who had been lucky enough to gain entree to these symposia, conducted like the original music hall, might simply enjoy; but if he could proffer his contribution, it was welcome, and, by special permission, he could stand beer or spirits or wine to the company. Yet woe betide the "gate-crasher"; he was lucky to escape by merely being frozen out. More often

Moore's Modesty.

This is the season when copyists in the National Gallery are busy copying Tom Moore's portrait; for, despite Hazlitt's very sound remark that "Mr. Moore converts the wild harp of Erin into a musical snuff-box," his melodies have won him undying fame in the United States.

It was while chatting to a copyist recently that I learned an interesting fact about Jackson's portrait of the poet in the National Gallery. On the back of the canvas is written: "Jackson has made the best likeness of my potato face."—Tom Moore, Rome, 1808. This is typical of the modesty which Moore shared almost to an equal degree with Charles Lamb. He never made any pretence about his appearance, though writers have spoken of his hair "curling in long tendrils" and his eyes sparkling like "champagne bubbles."

Foreigners' Luck.

Reports of "poaching" in Irish waters by foreign trawlers have brought to my mind a legend well known in Kinsale. Fable has it that Saint Multose, for some unknown reason, must needs build a church at Kinsale in a day. The work progressed rapidly, and by her divine powers the saint had almost completed her task in the prescribed time. As night approached she became fatigued, and, although it wanted but one stone to top the steeple, she was too faint to lift it unaided. Thereupon she called to a Kinsale fisherman, who chanced to be passing, to help her; but with a lazy shrug of his shoulders he continued on his way. Close on his heels, however, there followed a foreign fisherman, who willingly lent a hand to the distressed saint. When the stone was laid in position Saint Multose blessed the foreigner, but she laid a curse upon the men of Kinsale for all time.

Most of us discount such stories in our superior way, but the fact remains that, while a Kinsale fisherman can scarcely earn a living while fishing on his own account, he seldom fails to have a good take when in the employ of foreigners—even in his native waters.

THE SOCIETY OF OUR LADY OF LOURDES.

The fifth Committee meeting of the Irish Society of Our Lady of Lourdes was held at 30 South Anne street, Dublin, on Friday last. Mr. J. J. Nagle was in the chair, and there was a large attendance of the Committee.

Several applications were considered, including some from England.

It was noted with satisfaction that one Handmaid who has already been to Lourdes in May for fifteen days is returning there in September for a similar period.

A letter was read from Dr. John J. A. Sherry, Hon. President of the Society, Lourdes, in which he stated that: "Our helpers this year, so far, had acquitted themselves in a manner eminently fitting to the best traditions of the Hospitaltie."

Interesting reports were heard from those present who had been to Lourdes for duty.

Nine Handmaids and five Brancardiers were registered at Lourdes as taking up duties there in August.

Owing to the absence of some of the Committee at Lourdes during August, it was decided not to hold the usual monthly meeting.

DOCTOR INJURED IN GLIDING MISHAP.

Dr. John Allen, of Middlesex Hospital, London, is in Devizes Hospital suffering from injuries he received while taking part in a gliding and soaring meeting arranged by the Wilts Gliding Club.

Dr. Allen, who is a member of the London Flying Club, was flying his own glider, when a sudden gust of wind apparently caused him to overbank his machine, which struck a hillside with considerable force.

Dr. Allen's right leg was badly injured, and he is also suffering from head injuries. On inquiry yesterday it was learned that he had passed a comfortable night.

A SOUTHERN LETTER.

A CORK DOCTOR'S DILEMMA.

Condemned Meat Insurance : Understanding Wanted : Support For a Branch Railway. Mystery Tours.

From Our Special Correspondent.
CORK, Sunday.

THE state of affairs that has arisen over the dismissal of Dr. G. A. Barter from his post at the Cork County Home is one that has been coming to a head during the last year. It is not a question concerning Dr. Barter alone, for most of the leading eye and throat specialists in Cork are involved.

The position, briefly, is as follows: For some time the Board of Health has been trying to promote a scheme for school medical services in the county, under which the children of poor parents would receive free eye and throat treatment at the local dispensaries. The County Board of Health would pay the operating surgeon 10s. 6d. for each case. A similar scheme was already in operation for Cork City, and it was proposed that children from neighbouring districts should receive treatment in Cork under the proposed county scheme.

The Cork specialists did not, it is understood, object to the principle of this, and the real dispute arose concerning the means of the people it was proposed to treat. The doctors opposed the suggestion that parents with an income up to £4 a week should benefit, and they put forward 30s. or 35s. a week as a basis for discussion. They held the view that £4 a week in the country goes a much longer way than the same sum in the town, and that a countryman earning that wage would be well able to afford to pay for treatment in the ordinary manner.

A compromise, apparently, could not be reached on this point, and the city doctors accordingly refused to co-operate in the county scheme at all. It was at this point that Dr. Barter became involved.

Dr. Barter was in the position of being both a member of the Munster Ophthalmological and Laryngological Society (which was actively opposed to the scheme) and an employé of the Board of Public Assistance. Cases under the new scheme were sent to him for treatment at the County Home, and he, as a member of the society, refused to treat them. A letter was accordingly received from the Board of Health asking for his dismissal, and there, for the present, the matter rests.

Correspondence of an acrimonious kind is still between the parties concerned, and at the moment it seems unlikely that negotiations will be resumed. But unttil the matter is cleared up the authorities may find it difficult to fill Dr. Barter's place.

CONDEMNED MEAT.

Arising out of a recent report from the Cork Medical Officer of Health, which shows that a great amount of meat has to be condemned every month on the grounds of infection, a suggestion has been made that the meat traders should take up some form of insurance against this kind of loss. This would be not so much for their own good as for that of the public: at present the traders cover their risks in the prices charged to their customers, thus enjoying a free insurance already.

Proposals for a form of trade insurance were put forward in Cork some time ago, but the meat traders (somewhat naturally) saw no reason for supporting them. So the citizen pays doubly—once for his inspection service, and again in the form of higher prices to cover the loss of condemned meat.

UNDERSTANDING WANTED.

When democracy attempts to work in double harness with autocracy one can scarcely expect much harmony between them. In Cork the pair have been trying to pull together for the last two years, and it is a matter for surprise that their disagreements have not been more frequent.

The system of city government in Cork is a very peculiar one. When the Corporation was abolished in 1924 a City Commissioner was appointed, as in Dublin, to carry out its duties. This he continued to do until 1929, when the powers that be (with one eye, no doubt, on the will of the people) attempted a compromise. They reinstated the Corporation, but kept on Mr. Monahan as City Manager, dividing the authority between the two. Since that time relations, though never openly hostile, have been a little strained, each party being suspicious that the other may try to usurp some of its powers. To make the matter worse, there still seems to be some doubt as to how far the powers of each extend, in spite of the definitions of the 1929 City Management Act.

Two cases in point arose last week. In one the City Manager brought an action in the District Court to obtain possession of a dwelling-house. Counsel for the defendant contended successfuly that the summons should have been brought by the Cork Corporation, and the notice to quit signed by the Town Clerk. The City Manager, he said, had proved no title to the premises. It was submitted for the other side that the Manager had been charged with those duties by the Act of 1929, but the case was dismissed. On the same evening the Corporation discussed whether the control over corporate property was vested in itself or in the City Manager, and the point has not yet been settled to its satisfaction. Mutual understanding may come in time, but the moment has evidently not yet arrived.

SUPPORT FOR RAILWAY.

Though the Drumm battery may set everything to rights, there is no doubt that, for the present, the railways continue to be badly hit, and the public are beginning to realise the full danger of their position. Already concern is being felt in Cork over the dismissal of local employés, and, as for the public bodies, they pass resolutions asking for "co-ordination of transport" with the same monotonous regularity that they demand a tariff on bacon.

A great proportion of the railways' troubles in the South arises from the numerous branch lines that they have to keep up and on which there is very little traffic. Even at the best of times, one supposes, these lines would scarcely pay their way, and at present they are nothing but a dead loss. If they continue as such, they are bound to be closed down sooner or later.

If local people were to realise this, they might be prepared to support the railway more extensively, even if it meant a little more expense to themselves. The railways seem to be alive to this, and the recent action of the Great Southern Railways in sending down an official to address a meeting at Donoughmore was sound policy. It was pointed out that their branch line was not paying its way, owing to the lack of support that the farmers were giving it. It was plainly stated that the railway company had it in mind to close down the section altogether and that the inhabitants themselves would be the greatest sufferers.

The response was impressive; for the meeting resolved on the spot that in future they would send all their goods by rail. How long their enthusiasm will last is another matter, but it is bound to have some effect, and there seems to be no reason why the plan should not be extended to other districts.

MYSTERY TOURS.

An omnibus company has scored a striking success in Cork by instituting a series of "mystery tours." Every evening three 'buses leave the city, bound for "an unknown destination," and the intending explorer sometimes has to book several days in advance to make sure of a seat.

But the real mystery lies in the popularity of the idea. One would have thought that the seeker after pleasure would prefer to choose his own destination, rather than risk the possibility of going to some place that does not suit his mood so well. Perhaps, this very risk adds spice to the adventure, and there may be a real thrill in landing up at Clonakilty, when all the time you thought you were going to Youghal.

THE GATE THEATRE GARDEN PARTY.

SUNSHINE, SHOWERS AND PRETTY FROCKS.

Last Saturday afternoon a garden party was given in the grounds of Mr. R. J. Duggan's house on Merrion road, from 3 to 7. There were several hundreds of guests present, and it was noticeable that young women were greatly in the preponderance.

For the first two hours the gay and pretty frocks were lit up by the sun, and it looked as if the weather was going to adapt itself to garden parties at last. A little after five o'clock, however, the rain came down, and everyone disappeared into the tents, except a lady who weathered the storm in order to help out ices from under an umbrella, and another, who had been in charge of the race game, and who continued to add up her takings during the shower.

THEATRICAL CELEBRITIES.

A concert was given in the course of the evening, at which Miss Jean Nolan and Mr. Sealy Jeffares assisted. There were two plays and a pantomime. Miss Betty Chancellor, Miss Alacoque Tunney, Dr. D. G. White, Mr. Kenneth Reddin and Mr. J. T. O'Grady took part in the plays.

As might be expected, there were numerous theatrical people present, including Mr. Hilton Edwards and Mr. MacLiamhoir, accompanied by Mr. Harry Lloyd, from the Old Vic; Mr. and Mrs. James O'Dea, Mr. and Miss Carmichael, Mr. and Mrs. Denis Johnstone, Mrs. and Miss Casey, and Mr. Paul Farrell.

The evening's entertainment was concluded by an amusing auction of cakes by Mr. Hilton Edwards.

THE DRESSES.

Lady Longford, who was chairman of the Garden Party Committee, came in a rose-coloured tweed coat, a frock of a lighter shade and dark hat. Miss Duggan wore a pink frock and a large pink hat; Mrs. Blythe was dressed in black ninon and a black hat, which had a steel ornament at the side. Her sister, Miss McHugh, wore a black voile dress, with large white spots. Miss Sarah Purser wore a nigger crêpe de Chine dress, with hat to match, and sable furs. The Misses McNeill both wore light tweed coats over their frocks. Senator Mrs. Wyse Power was dressed in a grey ensemble, patterned with white flowers, and a black straw toque with white flowers. Miss Nancy Wyse Power's pretty Viennese coat and skirt of dark green silk was set off by a white basque silk blouse with scalloped edges. Her coat sleeves had turned-back cuffs of white scalloped silk also. Mrs. Hugh Kennedy wore a sapphire blue frock and hat of blue and white. Miss Mary Manning, who was in charge of the fruit and flowers' stall with Mrs. Spring, was strikingly dressed in a voile frock of vivid black and yellow-flowered design and a black satin coatee, with long sleeves. Her yellow bowler hat was trimmed with a yellow ostrich feather. Mrs. Manning, who helped Mrs. George Peritt with the sale of other garden produce, was dressed in a black spotted dress and wide black hat. Miss Elisabeth Curran was attractively dressed in a white voile dress with large black spots, and a very large Leghorn straw hat with black velvet ribbon. Mrs. Johnston wore a brown silk frock with cream vest and handsome amber beads. She wore a brown hat to match. Miss Patsy Brady came in a green ninon frock with a large black and green straw hat. Miss Ringwood's pretty red crepe-de-chine frock and coatee was worn beneath a dark red felt bowler, with an ostrich feather of the same shade. Miss Florence Lynch wore a lace hat with a frock of exclusive flowered design in suede georgette, and Miss Lowrie wore rose and flame-coloured voile; Miss Leyburne was charmingly dressed in a rose ninon, with blue-flowered pattern, blue shoes to match and a large white hat; Miss Coster wore a green flowered Paisley frock and green hat; Miss Jean Nolan appeared in a long black coat over a brightly coloured voile frock and black hat. Mrs. Loughridge, who was in charge of the treasure hunt, was dressed in a tweed coat with a red frock beneath, and hat to match; Miss Alacoque Tunney's hat of black net matched her black coat trimmed with white coney fur. She wore a flowered ninon frock. Miss Redmond was one of the few people who chose tweeds—she wore an attractive mustard-coloured three-piece costume, with a small black cap. Miss L. Mahony wore a blue and green-flowered voile frock with a bertha collar, and a blue and white straw hat. Mrs. Lanigan O'Keeffe was neatly dressed in a black coat and skirt and white silk blouse. Miss Ormond also wore black and white. Mrs. O'Brennan wore a red frock with a rectangular yellow pattern.

Parents for Trial.

Accused of Ill-Treating Children.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
ENNISKILLEN, Saturday.

THE magisterial investigation into charges of cruelly ill-treating their three younger children and inflicting bodily harm on their eldest girl, preferred against George Scott, station master at Irvinestown, Co. Fermanagh, and his wife, concluded at a special court at Irvinestown to-day. On the bench were Major Dickie, R.M. (in the chair); Captain Verschoyle, J.P., and Mr. Joseph Guy, J.P.

Dr. Clements bore out the testimony of Dr. Satchwell as to the bruises and injuries inflicted on the children. Some of the marks must have been inflicted with something like a poker. Marks on Victor's body were "awful." On George he found scratches. Only the children were healthy they could not have withstood the beatings.

In the case of the eldest girl, Martha Elizabeth, aged 17½ years, Dr. Clements described the bruises he found on her back and arms and shoulders. There were bruises around the lower portion of the body, and also on her legs.

GIRL'S EVIDENCE.

Martha Elizabeth Scott gave evidence that she was the eldest of the family and performed the household duties. Last Monday she got a beating with a switch around the shoulders and back because she had not fed the fowl properly. Her mother beat her often every second or third day, but her father only a few times for being disobedient. Her father used a strap and struck her legs with it a few times. He did nothing else.

The Chairman—Did your mother ever do anything else?—On Monday last she scratched the back of my hands on purpose with her nails. (Witness showed the marks.)

Have you ever been beaten with anything else besides a stick?—Yes, with nettles by mammy when we lived in Newtownbutler.

The Court asked defendants if they had anything to say, and they replied that they had not. Mrs. Scott later said that the whole story was a fabrication.

The defendants were returned for trial on both counts to the Quarter Sessions in bail of £50 and two sureties of £25 each. The bail was forthcoming and they were released.

Harvest Prospects.

Tipperary Farmers' Fears.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
TIPPERARY, Saturday.

Fears are entertained in County Tipperary for this year's harvest. Less than half the hay crop has been saved, and while some districts are fairly fortunate in this respect, in others, such as the Glen of Aherlow, where it has been raining almost continuously over a long period, operations are in a very backward state. Mangolds have suffered severely from the prolonged cold, wet spell, and are a very poor crop, while potatoes, particularly in low-lying areas, are blackening. Turnips generally are doing fairly well.

Looking to the Schools.

Campaign for the Revival of Athletics.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
KILKENNY, Sunday.

GENERAL O'DUFFY addressed a large meeting in the City Hall, Kilkenny, this evening on the athletic revival movement. The meeting was presided over by Mr. J. McKenna, Peace Commissioner. The Rev. J. Walsh, Adm., St. Mary's, apologised for the absence of the Most Rev. Dr. Collier, Roman Catholic Bishop of Ossory, and promised, on the Bishop's behalf, every support to the athletic movement launched by General O'Duffy.

General O'Duffy, in the course of his address, said that he feared that those placed in positions of responsibility in this country for the last [illegible] years had not done their duty by the people in the matter of athletics. He placed all his confidence in the schools, because he realised that the greatest work in the athletic movement would be achieved in the schools. He had hopes that the programme of athletics would be recognised by the Board of Education in the National Schools. The athletic movement, he said, had got a grip on the country, and was going to go ahead.

OUR GREATEST ATHLETE.

Dr. O'Callaghan, he declared, amid applause, was the greatest man that Ireland had produced in the sphere of athletics. Dr. O'Callaghan had raised the flag of Ireland at Amsterdam. They still could produce men of the type of Dr. O'Callaghan in every parish in Ireland.

Mr. J. Walsh, national teacher, Ballyfoyle, on behalf of the National Teachers' Association, promised to co-operate wholeheartedly with the movement.

The Shannon and Beet Sugar Schemes.

Mr. Lemass's Criticism

Speaking at Dangan yesterday Mr. Sean Lemass, T.D., said that the Government made a serious tactical mistake in not holding the general election some months ago. If they had done so they might have been able to pose before the people as men who, however defective in other respects, had at least the saving grace of efficiency. Now they were being found out. The mistakes of earlier years were coming home to roost. Each month that passed produced some fresh exposure of their utter incompetence in administration. The beet sugar impassé and the Shannon scheme collapse were only the first indications of the complete mess they had made of the country's business.

When the beet sugar scheme was working and the only criticism of it was its huge cost, it was the common policy of Mr. Hogan and other Government apologists to plead that a much better contract could have been made were it not for the civil war and the fact that Republican deputies were outside the Dail. Now that the scheme had temporarily ceased and the defects in the contract were so glaringly evident, and it could be seen that they could only be explained by a complete indifference to the interests of the farmers, Mr. Hogan had changed his tactics. He no longer excused the contract by reference to the circumstances under which it was made. He claimed that it was a good contract under any circumstances. The fact was that the Government, which had an inferiority complex, and considered anything suggested by foreigners naturally better than anything originating at home, were induced to make a bargain which resulted in the greater part of the huge subsidy going to the foreign owners of the factory and not to the growers of beet. That was the original mistake, which still persisted.

In the Shannon scheme affair Mr. McGilligan had tried, Mr. Lemass alleged, to cover up his own mistakes. The original estimate of £2,500,000 was adopted by Mr. McGilligan himself. Now he has asked the Dail to give him an additional £2,000,000.

"Walked" into Trap."

Judge's Comments in Tullamore Case.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
TULLAMORE, Saturday.

At the Tullamore Circuit Court, a married man, Patrick Buckley, a labourer, of Derrycooley, Rahan, was charged with an offence against a young girl. He pleaded guilty.

Judge Gleeson said that it was a very important case. It was one in which in the ordinary circumstances he would visit with a long term of imprisonment. He was going to make some remarks about the case, but he had said enough, in view of the fact that the Superintendent contemplated taking action; but he thought it was relevant and proper in this case in dealing with the prisoner that he should say there were strong circumstances in mitigation of punishment. The prisoner seemed to have walked into a trap, because the parents of the child absolutely almost invited him to do what he was doing, not in so many words, but the two of them—father and mother—with their eyes open, permitted him to go on. It was, at the same time, a case that could not be passed over without some punishment. He was a married man with a wife and four children, and he (the Judge) would impose the very moderate sentence of three months' imprisonment with hard labour from the date of arrest.

Northern Motor Week.

Plans for Tourist Trophy Race.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
BELFAST, Saturday.

ARRANGEMENTS are well advanced for the Northern motor week, which will culminate in the Royal Automobile Club's Tourist Trophy race, over the Ards Circuit, near Belfast, on Saturday, August 22nd. Prior to the race a motor car rally will be held, and the organising arrangements for this event are well advanced. Application forms for entry for this event have been received from motorists from all parts of the United Kingdom and the Irish Free State. Regulations and entry forms were sent to intending competitors to-day, and the latest date for entries will be August 10th. Checking arrangements are being made in Great Britain, Northern Ireland and the Free State. All entrants and persons nominated to drive in the rally must, if they have not done so already, make formal application to the Royal Automobile Club for international registration. Full members of the R.A.C. are exempt from registration. Northern competitors will be required to cover a 500 mile tour, and it is understood that several women intend to compete. The entire journey is to be done at an average normal touring speed of twenty-four miles per hour, although this speed can be increased if desired, and providing that conditions are favourable between the controls.

Starting from Belfast, the first control will be at Enniskillen, after 200 miles have been covered. Competitors are advised to keep slightly ahead of the normal touring speed, to allow time for possible tyre changing or other road mishap, and also to allow for meals. Two drivers are to take turns at the wheel, and the entire route will be over main roads. The rally will terminate at Bangor, which is providing the first prize of £100.

On the Saturday before the Tourist Trophy Race the Ulster Automobile Sports Club's hill climb will be held at Craigantlet, and there will again be a large entry, including many of the drivers competing in the Tourist Trophy Race. Altogether there will be ten events.

TOURIST TROPHY RACE.

Arrangements for the Tourist Trophy Race are proceeding satisfactorily. The grand stand at Dundonald is nearing completion, and the widening of Ballystockart Bridge also is well advanced. This was a very dangerous part of the course, and the improvements which have been made have eliminated much of the dangerous corner. The only unsatisfactory feature of the race is the slow rate at which subscriptions are coming in. A few days ago only £600 of the £1,000 required had been received, but the subscriptions now are coming in steadily, and there is every possibility of the full amount being received before the race.

Fifty-one cars have been entered for the race, thirty-nine of them being of British, and the remaining twelve of foreign manufacture. The M.G. midgets have the largest entry, and with the five Austin Sevens constitute Class H (up to 750 c.c.). other makes, with the number of each type entered, are shown in the following table:—

	No. Entered.	British.	Foreign.
M. G. Midget	13	13	—
Austin	5	5	—
Alfa Romeo	5	—	5
Riley	5	5	—
Talbot	4	4	—
Agrol Aster	3	3	—
Aston Martin	3	3	—
Frazer Nash	3	3	—
Bugatti	3	—	3
Maserati	3	—	3
Invicta	2	2	—
Lea Francis	1	1	—
Mercedes	1	—	1
Total	51	39	12

Keen interest will be taken in the duel between the Austins and the Midgets, which will receive four credit laps and a time allowance of eight minutes from the scratch car, the Mercedes, which has Class B (8,000 c.c.) all to itself.

The Royal Automobile Club is making arrangements for a special air liner to fly from London to Belfast for the Tourist Trophy race. The liner will be of the large three-engined type, and will call at Liverpool on both outward and return journeys.

MOTOR CYCLE GRAND PRIX.

The Ulster Motor Cycle Grand Prix, which is to be held on September 5, also is the subject of much interest. Northern Ireland held the "record" for the fastest road race when Stanley Woods won last year's Grand Prix at an average speed of 80.56 miles per hour, and J. H. Simpson had the fastest lap at 84.63. These figures, however, were beaten in the Dutch motor cycle race a few weeks ago, when Percy Hunt won at an average speed of 82.07 miles per hour, and also had the fastest lap at 84.9 miles per hour.

Already forty-two competitors have entered, and at least twenty others are expected before the closing date. Many well-known riders are included in the list, which is as follows:—

R. B. Brock, London (250 Levis).
A. G. Mitchell, Huddersfield (350 Velocette).

DUBLIN THEATRES.

George Shiels's comedies are always popular, and this week's revival of "Mountain Dew" at the Abbey Theatre will be welcomed. It is more than a year since this comedy was last played at the Abbey Theatre. The "Mountain Dew" will be played nightly at 8 o'clock, and there will be a matinée at 2.30 p.m. on Saturday.

"My Wife's Family" will be seen at the Gaiety Theatre this week. It is a farce, pure and simple. The play had a great reception at the Garrick Theatre, London, and in America.

Kilkenny County Board of Health has recommended the County Council to appoint Mr. R. F. Bowen, County Surveyor, as engineer, to supervise the work of the engineers and clerks of works serving in the county health districts.

FIANNA FAIL'S ECONOMIC POLICY.

CONFERENCE IN MARYBOROUGH.

(FROM OUR OWN REPORTER.)
MARYBOROUGH, Sunday.

A RESOLUTION calling on all Dail Deputies to take the necessary steps to secure an embargo on the imports into the Free State of foreign oats, barley, and barley products, except under licence, and the imposition of a duty of 20s. per cent. on all imported bacon, and pig produts, was passed unanimously at a largely attended conference, representative of the agricultural industry of Leix, which was held in the Town Hall here to-day. Mr. Eamonn de Valera, T.D., presided.

The resolution further asked for the prohibition of imports of bacon and other pig products into the Free State after December 31st, 1932, the marking legibly of all imported meat entering the Free State, so as to indicate the country of origin when such meat was exposed for sale, and the proper medical inspection of all imported meat. It further called for a scheme, pending the solution of the beet question, whereby those who grew beet in 1930, and had stood by their Association this year, should be compensated pro rata on the 1930 acreage out of that part of the subsidy voted by the Dail to 1931, and not paid to the factory, at the end of the present financial year.

Dr. Ryan, T.D., said that Fianna Fail's economic policy might be summarised in a few words. Their aim was to place as many people as possible on the land of Ireland with the greatest comfort possible.

The bacon industry, he continued, was one of the principal industries in the country, and they wanted to develop it as far as possible. The prices to-day were less than pre-war prices, and as things stood people producing bacon could not remain in production because it would not pay them. If they were, however, to continue in the production of bacon they must hold the market they had in Great Britain. In that market Irish bacon was commanding a better price than the bacon from any other country.

THE BEET CROP.

Dealing with the beet question, Dr. Ryan said that some assistance should be given to the farmers who produced beet last year, but had refused to do so this year, in order to compensate them for the losses they were enduring by having to put their land under other crops.

The resolution was proposed by Mr. Thomas Gowing; and Mr. M. Donnelly, who seconded, said that unless something was done immediately to help the farmer, the land would go out of cultivation, and the country would be turned into grazing land.

Mr. J. J. Bergin, referring to the bacon industry, held that the bacon factories in the country were not evenly distributed. He was of opinion that the money raised by a tariff on bacon should be given in the form of a bounty to people who were willing to establish bacon factories throughout the country.

Mr. Gorry, T.D., said that anyone conversant with agriculture knew that the country was practically bankrupt at the present time, so far as farming was concerned. The Government was allowing bacon from the ends of the earth to be dumped.

Mr. R. Hipwell objected to the proposed scheme for assisting beet-growers on the grounds that, while those who had refused to grow beet would get some compensation, new growers, who were growing this year but who supported the original growers in their fight, would get nothing.

Mr. de Valera said that his party took the view that those new growers who were not in the Growers' Association who stood down and did not grow did so because it was uneconomic to grow beet at the price. Their attitude was that a certain number of farmers were growing beet, and so participating in a national enterprise, and were being unfairly treated, and the question was whether they should get some assistance by way of compensation.

Mr. T. Derrig, T.D., and Mr. P. Boland, T.D., also spoke to the resolution. Mr Boland thought that the Beet Growers' Association should put their cards on the table and make the best possible offer.

PROTECTION.

Mr. de Valera, having outlined the aims and objects of the Fianna Fail Party, said there were now few people in the country who did not realise that the prosperity of the State depended on the prosperity of the farming community. It was quite obvious that if they were going to build up their industries they must protect them.

They in the Fianna Fail Party believed that the key to the restoration of tillage lay in the growing of wheat. If they only produced one-half the amount of wheat required they would be growing four hundred thousand acres.

Mr. de Valera dealt at length with the land annuities, and said that they asked that the Irish Free State should come under the moratorium. If Fianna Fail were in power it would be ridiculous to seek a moratorium. They would simply refuse to pay the annuities, because they would not be justified in paying them.

Mr. de Valera met a deputation of the Beet Growers' Association, which was introduced by Mr. J. J. Bergin, and he also held a conference with the members of the Fianna Fail Party.

The Call for Protection.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
KILKENNY, Sunday.

Speaking at Thomastown, Co. Kilkenny, to-day, Dr. Ryan, T.D., said that the Fianna Fail Party could prove that Mr. Blythe was legally entitled to withhold the annuities.

There was no solution of the economic difficulties of this country only protection for all their industries. The Labour Party had no intention of putting up sufficient candidates to form a Government. The Fianna Fail Party was the only party prepared to put up a sufficient number of candidates to enable them to form a Government.

Mr. Derrig, T.D., said that he would not blame the Farmers' Party making an alliance with the Government if they were getting anything in exchange for the alliance. The Fianna Fail Party was the only party that stood for protection for Irish industries and for whole-hog protection, if necessary.

The Tipperary Shooting.

Priest's Denunciation.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
TIPPERARY, Sunday.

AT the Masses in Cappawhite Parish Church to-day, the Archbishop of Cashel's letter condemning the shooting was read.

The Rev. Edward Ryan, P.P., said that the appalling crime that had been committed in the parish cried to Heaven for vengeance. That cry was heard, and God sentenced the person who committed murder. God Himself had said of the murderer, "Cursed is he on the earth." Cain murdered Abel. Abel's blood cried to Heaven, and in answer God cursed Cain. As God cursed Cain so did God curse everyone who committed murder. The conscience of the murdered condemned him; the image of his victim was ever before him eyes; it haunted him by day, it frightened him by night; he had no rest.

Father Ryan asked the people to pray for the repose of the soul of John Ryan, who, he said, was a God-fearing youth. His people were God-fearing people. Let them all pray that God might console this afflicted family. The parishioners offered them their deep sympathy, and deeply deplored this appalling deed. Let them pray, too, for those who committed the murder, that God might forgive them for what they had done; that He might give them the grace of repentance, and that they might be ready to meet Him when He called them to their account.

A TERRIBLE CRIME.

The Rev. R. Power, C.C., said that the terrible crime that had been committed in their midst had put a stain upon them

"As I stood by the dead body on the roadside," he said, "and administered the last Sacraments, and, as I raised the consecrated Host on the following morning in his house, and as later I stood by his grave, I could not help feeling that he was happier than those who caused his death. For him there was an appeal for God's mercy, but those who slew him asked for God's vengeance; for, if the Lord detests the shedding of innocent blood, how must he detest it when no preparation for death is allowed to the victim?"

The preacher spoke of the malediction that the Lord put on Cain for killing his brother, Abel. The mills of God's justice ground slowly, but they ground exceeding small. It was a dreadful thing to fall into the hands of the living God. Let them, in their detestation of this crime, pray that He might not visit His anger upon them.

To the parents, brothers, and sisters of the dead man Father Power tendered his heartfelt sympathy, and said that it was a matter for satisfaction that the parishioners held in such horror this accursed deed.

POLICE ACTIVE.

The Civic Guards continued their activities to day. A number of houses were visited, and a great many persons were closely questioned.

The wild, hilly country and bleak bogland around Moghera, in the Annacarthy district, now have been explored from end to end. The Dundrum-Bonera areas, and the rolling uplands of Hollyford, Doorish, and Rossmore, and portions of Donohill and Solohead, have been similarly combed.

Bishop and Lady Montgomery.

Golden Wedding Celebrations.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
DERRY, Saturday.

ON the occasion of their golden wedding jubilee, the Right Rev. Sir Henry Hutchinson Montgomery, D.D., K.C.M.G., and Lady Montgomery, New Park, Moville, entertained people of Moville and Greencastle districts, who celebrated the occasion with presents to the Bishop and his wife. Sir Henry is a prelate of the Order of St. Michael and St. George, and was formerly Bishop of Tasmania, and Lady Montgomery is a daughter of the late Dean Farrar.

The celebrations took place in St. Columb's schoolhouse, Moville, and the company included Mr. Harold Montgomery, a Provincial Commissioner in Kenya, and Mr. Donald S. Montgomery, a lawyer in Vancouver (sons of Sir Henry and Lady Montgomery); Mrs. H. Montgomery, Mrs. D. Montgomery, Mrs. A. Holden (Egypt), daughter; Mr. A. Holden and Miss U. Holden, eldest grandchild. Colonel J. A. L. Montgomery, brother of Sir Henry, also was present.

Lady Montgomery welcomed the company.

The Rev. R. S. Benson, B.A., Rector of Moville, presided, and mentioned that on July 28th, 1881, the Bishop and his wife, then the Rev. H. H. Montgomery and Miss Farrar, were married in the King Henry VII. Chapel of Westminster Abbey, by the Archbishop of Canterbury.

Mrs. Benson made the presentations, consisting of a clock, an armchair, and a case of knives, as tokens of the affection of the people of Moville and district.

The Bishop, in reply, said that the acts of the people in making those presentations had been especially overwhelming, because they came from all classes and from the whole town and neighbourhood.

The Chairman said that Sir Henry Montgomery was known the world over. Acquainted with almost every British Colony and many other countries where his calling took him, he was persona grata with their Royal family. Friend of King and cottager, he was happy in his duties in high places, and happier in his self-imposed duties at home, or in strolling down Moville or crossing the threshold of a hillside cottage. In Lady Montgomery, the daughter of that eminent divine, Dean Farrar, they saw the perennial graces and activities of youth. Though their gifts were small, they assured Bishop and Lady Montgomery that they came from them loaded with congratulations and good wishes.

A MOST URGENT NEED

find themselves in absolute need of funds to carry out the noble work. This year they have been granted a Province by the Holy See; which means a special field of labour for the Apostolate—viz., Nigeria. These vast Vicariates will depend entirely on Ireland for Missionary Sisters to help to bring to the true fold the millions of pagans who are "still seated in darkness and in the shades of death." At present our Novitiate here is hopelessly overcrowded, and a new wing is an absolute necessity. The work has to be undertaken immediately, and we are without means. However, we trust in Providence and also to the sympathy and generosity of our friends to help us in our great need. If the building is not started at once aspirants offering themselves to God for the West African fields of labour will have to be refused, owing to insufficient accommodation. We, therefore, earnestly beg of you to buy "BLOCKS" to help us to meet this urgent need—one, fifty, a hundred, five hundred, a thousand, as your faith and generosity will suggest. The estimated cost is £10,000. The prayers of the community are offered up daily for all our benefactors, living and dead. In addition, the names of all donors contributing £100 towards the "Building Fund" will be engraved on a slab, which will be erected in the Community Chapel, so that they will share in perpetuity the prayers and privileges of the Congregation.

All donations will be gratefully received by

THE MOTHER PROVINCIAL,
CONVENT OF OUR LADY OF APOSTLES,
BALLINTEMPLE, CORK.

Gold for France.

Strange and significant things are happening on the money market. Since the middle of this month French withdrawals of gold from the Bank of England have amounted to more than £35,000,000. On Thursday last the Bank, presumably, came to a conclusion that this sort of thing must stop, and the discount rate was increased from 2½ per cent. to 3½ per cent. Not everybody believed that the Bank's action would have the presumably desired effect; what they really appreciated was that its consequences would provide a useful touchstone of England's position in the financial world. If the price of sterling in the international markets moved upwards, the increase would reaffirm international confidence in England's financial stability. If the price fell, there would be a fairly safe presumption that the centre of European finance had shifted from London to Paris. As a matter of fact, the price rose both in New York and in Paris. On Friday a pound sterling was worth 123.85 francs on the Paris exchange; on Saturday it stood at 123.95 francs. Why this development came about is not clear; for the phenomena of the money market have their roots in all manner of circumstances. The interesting fact is that the exchange rate has risen above the figure at which it is profitable to take gold from England to France.

The Bank of England took a chance, and thereby has asserted its prestige. Nevertheless, from the purely practical point of view, many people are wondering whether it would not have done better to leave its discount rate alone, and to let France withdraw as many short-term credits as she wished—preferably all of them. However stable England—or, for that matter, any nation—may be financially, as these people plead, incessant pinpricks cannot do it good, and the French have a perpetual tendency to run to panics. The late withdrawals of gold, it is true, have not sprung from any open lack of confidence throughout France; but certainly there has existed a state of nervousness which at any moment might assume the form of a financial panic in the accepted sense, and might cause England, if not embarrassment, considerable nuisance. On the other hand, there always is the possibility that, if the Bank of England had not put a stop to the gold withdrawals by raising its discount rate, and therewith the price of the pound sterling, the continued flow of gold would have unsettled the money market in course of time. One never knows when the border-line between confidence and panic may be crossed. Hitherto, as events show, the Bank of England's prestige has remained steadfast; yet at any moment some tiny circumstance might induce a belief that its credit was imperilled by the loss of gold, and a very real panic in London and New York might be the consequence. The marvel is that something of the kind has not occurred already; for few central banks could submit to such treatment as the Bank of England has received from France lately without complaint or apparent worry.

Now that an end of the French withdrawals is in sight, we may ask why they ever occurred, and particularly why the rate of withdrawal was intensified within the last fortnight. France has no lack of gold; indeed, on the 13th July the quantity in her coffers amounted to nearly £430,000,000—enormously more than is sufficient for her needs in ordinary circumstances. She does not lack confidence in England, qua England; for during the fortnight the Paris discount rate has not fallen, as it normally ought to do when so huge a quantity of money is in the land, but actually has risen. It follows that French money is being kept in the banks, and is not being used to purchase foreign bills; and the manifest corollary is that France, worried by her almost universal unpopularity among the nations, is in a high state of political perturbation. The Seven-Power Conference, largely through France's unwillingness to discuss the matter of reparations, was a fiasco, and it has not cleared the air to the smallest degree. If France were to face the facts in an international spirit, Germany would stand a fair chance of rapid recovery; the world's markets would feel the effect, and there would be an end of pettifogging suspicions.

The North-West Frontier.

Some pertinent points are raised in the recently issued report of the Committee which assembled under the chairmanship of Mr. H. G. Haig at Peshawar to decide the political future of the North-West Frontier Province. The Committee's terms of reference were comprehensive in that they included the apportionment of North-West Frontier affairs between provincial and central interests. Hitherto the frontier has been an administrative area rather than a political unit—a condition which was held to be out of accord with the Round Table Conference's outlook upon Indian matters. "Our task, as we understand it," said the Committee, "is to make recommendations which will facilitate the emergence, in political form and substance, of a province. For this purpose it is necessary to decide the precise sphere of administration to be entrusted to the new province, and to ensure that it shall have the main essential of a real province—namely, its own Budget." Such an outlook, in view of the fact that all imperial politics in India are circumscribed by Lord Irwin's declaration and the federal concept of the Round Table Conference, is wholly defensible. Fortunately, in this case, prudence has not been wanting. The Committee began its deliberations on the assumption—strongly supported by a local demand—that the new province ought to enjoy equality of treatment with the rest of India. It was at pains, therefore, to provide the province, so far as it was compatible with safety from external aggressors, with all the required autonomous dignity. On the other hand, the province's peculiar needs, both in regard to external defence and to tribal characteristics, could not be ignored. A difficult via media remained to be trod, and it must be admitted that the Committee, if its premises are allowed, has trodden it successfully. Broadly, its recommendations are sound. It has differentiated strongly between the settled districts and the tribal territories—a demarcation which, in the circumstances, was inevitable. All matters that concern the five settled districts, it holds, ought to be regarded as provincial; those matters which primarily concern the tribes must fall within the bailiwick of the central authority. In its anxiety that such essentially domestic questions as the upkeep of roads shall be entrusted to the new province, the Committee has manifested its jealousy for local prestige. Furthermore, in obedience to this bias it has advocated that the maintenance of provincial roads and buildings shall be transferred to the Public Works Department—the thin edge, as we suppose, of federalisation's wedge. The Committee, however, has preserved its sense of general responsibility; for it has provided for exceptional cases where certain areas require military patrolling, and these districts it is prepared to leave under the control of the military engineering service. In regard to a subvention the Committee recommends that it should be for a period of five years, and that its expenditure should be at the discretion of the Provincial Government. Finally, the Committee has proposed 1933 as the date for the inauguration of the new Constitution. One vital issue, however, has not yet been solved. Everything must depend upon the opinion of Army headquarters, and this opinion is not yet forthcoming. We trust that nothing will be done without such sanction.

The Davis Cup.

As a result of yesterday's play the Davis Cup remains in France. The winning team was composed of players who—accepting the standards of modern lawn tennis—all have attained a ripe age. Following the defeat of M. Cochet in the first round of the Wimbledon championships, and that of M. Borotra a little later, it was, indeed, the opinion of many critics of the game that the two great players were now too far advanced in years to continue their triumphal careers. It is pleasant to find these gloomy prophecies unfulfilled, at least in the case of M. Cochet, and to have the reassurance that his imperturbable demeanour on the court is not yet an indication of cheerless senility. The feature of this year's competition, however, has been the prowess of the English team. Not since 1912 has England earned the privilege of challenging the holders in the final round, and the series of victories in international matches which stand to the credit of teh country this summer, is a most hopeful sign for the future. England appears to have a generous supply of young players who are capable—as we in Ireland have reason to know—of giving a good account of themselves, and with this supply of talent at the disposal of the country England should be able to look forward with some confidence to the prospect of the Davis Cup's crossing the Channel within the next few years. The renaissance of the game in England can do this country nothing but good. Almost the primary need of players in Ireland is the opportunity for practice against "stars" from outside, and, if we continue to receive visits from teams of the younger and most promising English players, it seems certain that the standards of Irish lawn tennis will benefit greatly, in time, by their stimulating influence.

A Turning Tide.

The present summer is witnessing the return to Ireland, from the United States, of hundreds of men and women who have been disappointed in receiving but a flinty reception in streets traditionally paved with gold. Their arrival gives a completely new turn to an old problem, and the nature of their welcome to the land of their birth is, no doubt, under discussion by the Government. While the first consideration obviously must be the provision of work for the returned exile, there are other aspects of the matter which are not without their own importance. The roots of American culture lie deep, perhaps, too deep to be readily discovered by the superficial researches of workingmen who have spent a few months in the country, and on the surface the picture is not edifying. A contempt for law and order is only too evident in the reports from certain American cities, and one is led to fear that the returned emigrant may have gained an unwholesome familiarity, at first hand, with this evil condition. The "gangster" and the "racketeer" have for most of us nothing but the shadowy existence of the cinema, but to these men they will have become a living reality. It may well be that conversation in many homes during the coming winter will turn on the intricacies of the illicit trade in liquor or the lethal process pleasantly described as "taking a ride." Less serious, but still a matter for concern, is a possible deterioration of speech resulting from the importation into this country of American familiar speech. The argot of the Bowery, vivid as it may be, is out of place in Ballyjamesduff, and the prospect of hearing the soft intonation of Cork replaced by the less musical accents of Chicago is not one to be viewed with equanimity.

IRISH TRADE UNION CONGRESS.

THE WORKING WEEK AND UNEMPLOYMENT.

Amongst the proposals to be submitted at the Irish Trade Union Congress, which opens on Wednesday, July 29th, in the City Hall, Waterford, are two from the Belfast and District Trades' and Labour Council and the Typographical Association, calling for the adoption of the five-day week, with a view to removing the unemployment menace. To these resolutions an amendment will be submitted by the Irish Women Workers' Union to substitute "40 hour working week" for five day working week. That the nursing staff in all institutions should have an eight-hour day is proposed by the Irish Nurses' Union. Where unemployment exists in the industry, the Amalgamated Society of Dyers and Bleachers (Dublin Branch) asks Congress to say that overtime should not be worked.

SLUM CLEARANCE.

The National Executive demands the establishment of a National Housing Council to secure the erection of working-class dwellings at an economic rent over a period of ten years, and urges the adoption of such steps as may be necessary to give effect to the proposal. The Irish Women Workers' Union demands that the Government shall arrange to finance a drastic clearance of slum dwellings in cities, country towns and rural districts; introduce a Town Planning Bill, and, by long-term loans, control of ground rent and cost of materials, and a continuous house-building scheme, facilitate the rapid provision of houses at rents that the workers can pay.

Resolutions from the National Executive urge the appointment by the Minister for Education of a Council of Education to assist and advise him on all educational matters; and also the improvement of school buildings.

Questions of social insurance and workmen's compensation, continuity of unemployment insurance payment and insurance reciprocity will also come up for consideration. Other matters to be dealt with are:—Widows' and orphans' pension, pensions for manual employés of local authorities, shops legislation, housing grants, foreign-owned shops, and foreign labour.

A PROBLEM DEVELOPING.

In the report of the National Executive it is stated:—"The world economic crisis so seriously affecting the highly industrialised countries, could not be expected to leave this country untouched; and it is mainly due to the agrarian nature of Ireland that the gigantic unemployment problem found elsewhere is not oppressing this country to the same degree. The draining of Ireland's population to America has mitigated the most serious aspects of the unemployment problem for us, and bad undoubtedly as the position of the unemployed worker is, his condition would be infinitely worse were it not that America offered huge employment for Irish workers during the last ten years.

"This source of relief is now practically dried up, and the emigrant ship as a means of escape is now available only to those who have ample means to leave the country. The inability of a large section of the Irish workers to find a home in America—as many did formerly—will now leave this country with a growing population to cater for; an acute situation will, therefore, eventually arise in the course of a decade, unless the economic system is adjusted to absorb and keep pace with the expanding population."

LONDON LETTER.

MR. MACDONALD IN GERMANY.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
SUNDAY NIGHT.

Owing to the inclement weather conditions Mr. Ramsay Macdonald's plans for his Berlin visit were rearranged. Instead of making the journey by air he left London by train to-night and will return with Mr. Henderson on Wednesday in order to be in the House of Commons for the adjournment on Friday. It is not surprising that the visit to Germany of these two leaders of the Labour Party is responsible for a great deal of speculation, and it is asked what may be expected of the meeting. Ostensibly it is to be a friendly foregathering in return for the visit of the German Ministers to Chequers, but in reality it is declared in quarters, likely to be well informed, that there will be a series of highly important conversations in relation to the situation on the Continent, particularly as it affects this country, and not necessarily confined to the financial outlook.

General Election in Sight?

Mr. Baldwin had a most enthusiastic audience yesterday when he addressed a mass meeting of Conservatives in Knole Park at Sevenoaks. He had little that was new to say, but he did point out to the gathering that, in his view, a general election cannot be long delayed, as the country is ready, and desirous to a change. His words are likely to prove inspiring to the Conservative Party, but at the same time there appears to be little prospect of their being realised. The Labour Party is in possession, and, while the Liberals cling to it, nothing can be done to break it up. Mr. Lloyd George realises to the full that there is no immediate future for his party, and he will not let his Labour friends go to the poll a minute sooner than is absolutely necessary. Last year there were occasions when it seemed that the Government might be compelled to appeal to the country, but such occasions are becoming less frequent, and it is accepted in political circles that it will be shaken out of office only by the unexpected.

The Socialist Elector.

Mr. Baldwin possibly is correct in his view that the Conservatives will return to power at the next general election, though it must be admitted, as it is by keen politicians here, that it is not at all certain that there will be a sweeping Conservative victory. The electorate is so huge, and composed of such varying elements that it is impossible to forecast what may happen in response to any sudden change in policy, or even any pronouncement on the part of a leader of any one of the parties. Mr. Ramsay Macdonald has a great following of electors, who fear changes in the measures now providing their fellows with a comfortable existence, and hope for extension of the system, now developing, whereby a small section of the community is taxed for the benefit of the larger, and this following is not likely to be easily swayed from its allegiance. Experienced politicians express the view that a great turn-over in votes is unlikely to materialise until the workman definitely realises that his living is being gradually taken from him by the foreign dumper.

Movements of Gold.

The withdrawal of nearly four millions of gold for France yesterday is believed to see the end of a gold pressure which was becoming serious, if not alarming. It was held in the City yesterday that the end of the incessant drain since July 13 is now in sight, and that there may be a return of considerable quantities of the precious metal before long. In the circumstances, it is a matter for congratulation that the Bank of England had accumulated large stocks of gold, and thus was better able to meet a strain that would have been most serious had the Bank been altogether unprepared. The Bank of France now holds enormous sums in gold, estimated to be equal to £463,168,000 sterling, and is prepared to take still more. It is thought in the City of London that if the gold withdrawals from London continue there will be some interesting developments. The Bank of England will not fail to act at the first sign that its reserves are being endangered.

Finance and Politics.

A great deal of the interest in the international financial situation has been removed for the moment to other centres. News from Basle shows that no time is being lost by the Bank for International Settlements in acting on the recommendations of the London Conference, while advices from Washington indicate that much significance is attached to the visit of Mr. H. L. Stimson to Berlin, despite the declaration of the United States Secretary for State that his trip to Germany has nothing to do with financial matters. The cordial interchange between M. Laval and Dr. Brüning in London has not been without effect in Paris and Berlin. While financial discussions are taking place in all these centres, the International Court of Justice at The Hague is considering the legality of the Austro-German customs union, and, as recent events have proved that international questions relating to finance and politics cannot be separated, much will depend upon its decision. Washington is receiving constant advices from all the European capitals, and it is a hopeful sign that a more confident feeling is shown in the week-end news from the United States.

The British Industries Fair.

The British Industries Fair, to be held in London and Birminhgam in February next, is likely to be a great success, as two-thirds of the space has already been taken up, and this in face of a great increase in accommodation. The opening is still seven months distant, and the organisers point out that the large amount of space taken shows that British manufacturers are appreciating the fair as an important part of their sales organisation. Once again it is shown that industry is doing its utmost to surmount the difficult times, and it is hoped that the fair will justify the efforts which are being made.

A Bad Holiday Season.

London experienced something approaching a deluge last night, heavy rain falling continuously for several hours, and putting an end to the many outdoor sports and amusements of the week-end. There was no very great improvement to-day, there being heavy showers at frequent intervals, and the streets were deserted. The uncertain weather, and possibly a shortage of money, is playing havoc with the seaside resorts of the better-class type, and empty hotels and guest-houses are common. I was talking yesterday to a man who had been touring the south coast in his car, and he said that he had been told, by hotel-keepers, many sad stories of hopes deferred. In several places he found the holiday visitors to be a mere handful, and he wonders what will happen if August does not bring salvation to places and people where preparations have been troublesome and expensive. One of the difficulties with which the movement in favour of earlier holidays has to contend is the school vacation, but efforts to arrange for schools to close at different periods have ended in controversy, all schools showing themselves perfectly willing for the others to have the early period

Innishowen Feis was opened at Carndonagh on Saturday. There are 700 entries for the different competitions.

PRIEST SHOT DEAD AT THE ALTAR.

ASSASSINS DRIVEN OFF BY ARMED SACRISTAN.

PANIC AT A CHILDREN'S SERVICE.

MEXICAN ANTI-CLERICS SET FIRE TO FOUR CHURCHES.

A RELIGIOUS "war" has broken out in the State of Vera Cruz, following the attempt of the authorities to enforce the State law reducing the number of priests from two thousand to thirteen.

The Governor of Vera Cruz has been wounded and several persons have been killed, while four churches have been burned.

Four men entered a church where a children's Service was proceeding, shot dead one of the two officiating priests and seriously wounded the other. The sacristan replied to the assassins' fire and drove them off, seriously wounding one.

Martial law has been proclaimed in Vera Cruz, and troops are patrolling the streets. Further trouble is feared.

GOVERNOR'S DUEL WITH ASSAILANT.

From Reuter's Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Sunday.

THE trouble started yesterday when the Governor was shot at while leaving his Palace. His assailant, a young man, fired from behind a pillar in the Colonad.

The bullet clipped the Governor's left ear. He immediately whipped out his revolver, dived behind another pillar and returned the fire.

For nearly a quarter of an hour a remarkable duel took place between the Governor and his would-be assassin. They dodged from pillar to pillar, emptying and reloading their weapons several times.

HOW THE DUEL ENDED.

The Governor's two escorts, who were unarmed, bolted indoors at the first shot.

The duel was brought to a close by an official in a Government department across the street, who secured a revolver, sniped at the young man from behind and finally brought him down.

Although mortally wounded, the Governor's assailant refused to give his name or the reason for his attack. A number of Roman Catholic religious medals were found on the body.

MOB ATTACK CHURCHES.

The news of the affair spread like wildfire, and soon a raging anti-clerical mob gathered and attacked four churches in succession, spraying them with petrol obtained from filling stations near by and setting them alight.

The Church of San Jose was completely destroyed, while the others were extensively damaged before the troops and firemen extinguished the flames.

Many persons were injured by falling beams and masonry.

PRIEST'S MURDER.

At another church, where a children's Service was proceeding, four men suddenly entered and shot at the two officiating priests, killing one outright and seriously wounding the other as he sought shelter behind some benches.

A sacristan replied to the fire, and drove off the raiders, one of whom was seriously hurt.

A young girl in the congregation also was wounded.

A panic broke out among the children, who fled to the doors. Many were knocked down and trampled on.

MARTIAL LAW.

All is now quiet.

Martial law has been proclaimed, and troops are patrolling the streets; but more trouble is feared, as the Church authorities in Mexico city are reported to have ordered the clergy at Vera Cruz to disobey the anti-clerical law, which they regard as unconstitutional.

THRILLING RACE FOR KING'S CUP.

AIRMAN WINS BY THREE MINUTES.

WOMEN PILOTS BEATEN.

THE air race for the King's Cup, the most coveted trophy that English aviators can complete for, was won on Saturday by Flying Officer E. C. T. Edwards at an average speed of 117.8 m.p.h. He piloted a Blackburn "Bluebird," Mark IV., machine, owned by Mr. Robert McAlpine.

He landed at Heston Air Park at 6.34 p.m., only three minutes ahead of Flight Lieutenant F. G. Gibbons in a Spartan plane, who maintained an average speed of 109.1 m.p.h.

Lieutenant P. G. Tremayne-Rodd, R.N., flying Miss Peggy Salaman's Puss Moth was third. His average speed was 127.5 m.p.h.

When Flying Officer Edwards arrived at Heston rain was falling heavily. A thousand people rushed towards his plane, and cheered as it came to a standstill in front of the clubhouse.

He said: "It was pretty hard going at times. The visibility was not over good, but Mr. McAlpine's plane stood me in good stead.

"I feel sure after I had left Bristol that I had overtaken Flight Lieutenant Gibbons, although in the bad visibility I never once saw him during those last exciting minutes

"I knew it was neck or nothing and I went all out."

Flying Officer Edwards, who is a former Oxford rowing Blue, was Miss Winifred Spooner's companion when they fell into the Mediterranean at night during an attempt on a "record" flight to the Cape and back.

There was a tremendous duel over the last lap of ninety-four miles, from Bristol to London, between Edwards and Gibbons. They had timed in at the same moment at Bristol and left at the same time.

There were forty entrants this year, including six women, four of whom—Lady Bailey, wife of Sir Abe Bailey; Miss Diana Guest, daughter of the Hon. F. E. Guest; Miss Winifred Brown (last year's winner) and Miss Delia Crossley, daughter of Sir Kenneth Crossley—piloted their own machines.

Miss Brown retired after making a forced landing at Hickleton and bursting a tyre.

Flying-Officer Edwards.

Miss Guest retired after reaching Leeds, and Lady Bailey after two hours in the air.

Miss Crossley was the only woman to complete the course. She was the last arrival but one.

The finishing times of the first ten were:—

1—Flying-Officer Edwards, 6h. 34m.
2—Flight-Lieutenant F. G. Gibbons, 6h. 37m.
3—Lieutenant Geoffrey Rodd, R.N., 6h. 54m.
4—Mr. L. M. J. Balfour, 6h. 59m.
5—Flight-Lieutenant E. A. Healy, 7h.
6—Squadron-Leader J. M. Robb, D.S.O., 7h. 8m.
7—Mr. A. C. Jackaman, 7h. 13m.
8—Mr. A. C. Irwin, 7h. 14m.
9—Mr. C. S. Napier, 7h. 16m.
10—Flight-Lieutenant Dawson, 7h. 17m.

Mr. J. Grierson, who had been third at Bristol, finished eleventh.

CHEVIS POISON CASE.

A MYSTERIOUS TELEGRAM.

POLICE INQUIRIES IN DUBLIN.

DUBLIN detectives since last Saturday morning have been seeking to elucidate the mystery surrounding a telegram which, it is stated, was sent from a post office in Dublin, and was received at Argyle road, Boscombe, Leicestershire, by Sir William Chevis, father of Lieutenant Hubert George Chevis, of the Royal Artillery, Blackdown Camp, Aldershot. Lieutenant Chevis died of strychinine poisoning on the 21st of last month, shortly after he and his wife had eaten some partridge that had been imported from Manchuria.

The telegram, which apparently was sent on the 23rd June, and was unsigned, read:—"Hooray, hooray, hooray." It was given to the Boscombe police, and Superintendent Stovell, of Farnham, communicated with the Civic Guard in Dublin, who, it is understood, also received a request from Scotland Yard, to inspect the registers of city chemists for records of sales of strychnine for some time before the death of Lieutenant Chevis.

So far as can be ascertained the telegram was given in by a man who is described as being about 50 years of age, short, and of slight build, with grey hair showing under a grey hat. He is said to have been wearing a smartly cut grey tweed suit, and to have had a grey moustache close cropped.

On the back of the telegram a name was written, and also the address of a Dublin hotel, but the police on going to the hotel were informed that no one of the name given on the back of the telegram had been registered there, not could they find anyone who had seen a man of the dscription mentioned in the hotel.

The detectives have been visiting the shops of chemists in the city, and examining the registers of sales of poison with the object of tracing any sale of strychnine within the last three months that would throw any light on the death of Lieutenant Chevis, and it is understood that in an outlying chemist's shop they found an entry of a sale of strychnine to a person registered in a name corresponding to a name that they have in their possession. It is further understood that the police have in their possession the name of a woman, and are still pursuing their inquiries.

COMMUNIST RIOT IN BRUSSELS.

AN "INVASION" FROM LIEGE: FIFTY ARRESTS.

From Reuter's Correspondent.

BRUSSELS, Sunday.

The Sunday rest of Brussels was disturbed by Communist rioting to-day.

A party of fifty Communists, including several women, drove in from Liege to-day in a motor coach.

They organised an open-air meeting in conjunction with some local friends. The police came up to disperse the meeting and take the names of the speakers. A violent affray with fists and sticks ensued. A police commissary was seriously wounded in the head and several constables were also wounded.

Police reinforcements were sent for and the rioters were encircled, fifty being arrested. Loaded sticks, revolvers and ammunition were found in the motor coach.

NEW BANK TO AID GERMANY.

TO HAVE CAPITAL OF £10,000,000.

BRITISH MINISTERS LEAVE FOR BERLIN.

CHEQUERS DISCUSSIONS TO BE CONTINUED.

From Reuter's Correspondent.

BERLIN, Sunday.

AN "acceptance and guarantee" bank is to be founded in order to restore an "unhampered currency" to circulation and to enable the Darmstadter Bank to reopen.

The new bank is to have a capital of 200,000,000 marks (£10,000,000). The decision to establish the new bank was taken at a long and exhaustive conference between the Government and representatives of the Reichsbank and the leading banks.

A number of British bankers are expected to arrive in Berlin to-morrow to discuss with the directors of the Reichsbank and leading German bankers the steps necessary for the consolidation of German short-term credits, and for the safeguarding of both German and British financial interests.

The resumption of normal banking business in Germany will be possible only if the risk of a renewed run on the banks is definitely averted.

Meanwhile the Council of the Stock Exchange to-day announced that payments falling due at the end of this month may be postponed till the end of August, thus averting heavy withdrawals of cash for this purpose.

Bankers are full of hope that the beginning of a definite and permanent improvement in Germany's financial position will be seen next week, but much depends upon the meeting of the Council of the Reichsbank to-morrow.

MR. STIMSON IN BERLIN.

From Reuter's Correspondent.

BERLIN, Sunday.

The news of the foundation of the acceptance and guarantee bank has caused general satisfaction in financial, industrial and political circles here as being the best and safest way out of Germany's financial crisis.

Germany's leading banks have thus done all they were able to do and show that Germany will exert all her resources in order to regain the confidence of the world. The Reichsbank, too, will now be able, without taking any dangerous risks, to do away more speedily with the restrictive measures which are almost paralysing the life and trade of industry.

This decision of the banks was one of the subjects under discussion at the luncheon given in honour of the American Secretary of State, Mr. Stimson, by Dr. Curtius, the Foreign Minister, on the terrace of a restaurant overlooking the Wannssee Lake, near Potsdam. The Chancellor, Dr. Brüning, and Mr. Hackett, the American Ambassador, were also present.

Although nothing was revealed about the discussion, nevertheless the greatest importance is attached in diplomatic circles to the informal and intimate conversation between the statesmen, which lasted a considerable time.

It is hoped that the new formula will result from this conversation and the forthcoming discussions with Mr. Macdonald and Mr. Henderson, which will dispel apprehensiveness in Germany itself and the international mistrust which is at present paralysing the efforts to put Germany's financial house and that of the entire world in order.

To-night Mr. Stimson was the guest of Dr. Bruening at a dinner, to which, at Mr. Stimson's request, a large number of the leading industrialists and bankers were invited.

MR. MACDONALD DEPARTS.

The Prime Minister and Mr. Henderson have gone to Berlin to continue the friendly discussions begun at Chequers when Dr. Brüning, the German Chancellor, and Dr. Curtius the German Foreign Minister, came to this country early in June. The main subject of discussion then was the grave financial plight into which Germany had fallen. As soon as the Chequers Conference was concluded the German Chancellor invited Mr. Macdonald and Mr. Henderson to pay a return visit to Berlin. This invitation was accepted, and the visit fixed for Friday, July 17. The Seven-Power Conference, however, intervened, and the visit to Berlin was postponed until this week-end.

George Semmelmann, a German merchant who played a part in the Communist movement and was for some time living in Soviet Russia, was shot at and wounded on Saturday morning by a Swiss named Egon Spielmann, who made his way into his lodgings in Vienna.—(Reuter.)

GIPSY MUSIC FOR ROYAL BRIDE!

PRINCESS ILEANA'S SHEPHERD GUESTS.

WEDDING PAGEANTRY IN THE CARPATHIANS.

From Reuter's Correspondent.

SINAIA, Sunday.

AMID the rejoicings of a nation Princess Ileana, the beautiful twenty-one years old daughter of the late King Ferdinand and Queen Marie of Rumania was married to-day to Archduke Anton, the seventh son of the Archduke Leopold Salvator of Hapsburg.

The marriage was solemnised in the great hall of the picturesque Palace of Peles, which is perched like a fairy castle on the crest of a lofty, pine-covered hill.

From daybreak this morning villagers in bright colours and mountain peasants in their traditional costumes invaded the famous summer resort of Sinaia for the celebrations in connection with the wedding.

RUSTIC DANCERS.

Many rode bareback on rough country horses; others drove in old-world carts drawn by oxen, while shepherd flute-players and gipsy musicians, assembled in the Palace grounds, played joyous airs for the rustic dancers.

Princess Ileana.

As ten o'clock, the hour appointed for the religious marriage ceremony, approached, some three hundred guests assembled in or about the large hall of the Palace, where an altar had been arranged. After a short period of waiting, during which the civil ceremony was taking place, the smiling Princess entered the hall at the same time as her future husband.

This feature is unavoidably held over until to-morrow's issue.

The Princess wore a dress of silver, and her heavy silver train was carried by four tiny girls, two of whom were Brownies from the Princess's own troop of Girl Guides.

The Queen Mother remained seated during the long religious ceremony between her two daughters, ex-Queen Elizabeth of Greece and Queen Marie of Yugoslavia. Little Prince Michael sat alert and eager beside his father, the King, taking in every detail of the lengthy proceedings.

POPE'S BLESSING.

The Archbishop of Bukharest performed the wedding ceremony, and the Abbé Vladimir, brother of the Minister of Foreign Affairs, read an address, which brought tears to the eyes of some of the hearers, begging the Princess not to forget the Carpathians and the lovely plains of her birthplace.

The Princess was conducted to the altar by her brother, King Carol, and, on the conclusion of the ceremony, the happy couple were presented with a special written message of blessing from the Pope.

STILL A RUMANIAN.

After the ceremony the bridal pair drove in a State carriage through the cheering crowds to the military cemetery, where they laid a wreath of beautiful flowers on the memorial dedicated to those who fell in the War.

Before the civil ceremony the Princess signed a legal declaration affirming her maintenance of Rumanian citizenship in spite of her marriage.

The young couple are leaving this afternoon for the little castle of Bran, in the mountains, which has been placed at their disposal for the period of the honeymoon, after which they will proceed to Munich, where they intend to reside.

A great reception and ball took place in the castle of Pelesh last night, to which six hundred guests were invited.

DAVIS CUP FIGHT.

GREAT BRITAIN GAME LOSERS.

FRENCH SUPREMACY CHALLENGED.

WONDERFUL PLAY BY AUSTIN AND PERRY.

PARIS, Sunday.

THE greatest losing fight that has ever been made for the Davis Cup was made by Great Britain to-day when she just failed, by three matches to two, to wrest from France the trophy that France now holds for the fifth successive year. If this challenge round could have been won by grit alone the Cup would be Britain's to-day. The régime of France in world tennis is undoubtedly coming to an end, and how nearly Britain came to ending it is told by the scores.

France had to muster every ounce of her waning skill to pull through, and there was even a touch of desperation in her play. Nevertheless, none will withhold the praise due to her players for their steady defence of a trophy which they have won for five years in succession.

At the same time the past belongs to the past. France can look back; England can look forward, and the vista of the future is bright with the highest promises. All aspiring tennis nations must be jealous of England in the latter's possession of two such great players as H. W. Austin and F. J. Perry. Their destiny is assured by their play in this year's matches, and few there can be who, in the years immediately ahead, will be able to check their advance to the honour which France has won. There were many times during this tie when the issue wavered in the balance. But England's players were at a disadvantage. They were new to the experience of fighting for the Cup; they were young, and, finally, their tennis lacked just the depth of cunning which undermines the confidence of an opponent. This cannot be taught, but it must be learned from experience. France is jubilant with her success, which she knew to be seriously menaced.

As soon as the tie began Austin's bid against Cochet failed narrowly. The defeat of Borotra by Perry made France desperately anxious, but her win in the doubles calmed her fears.

FRANCE'S ONLY HOPE.

Coming to the last day, France's only hope was Cochet. Austin beat Borotra, and the burden of keeping the Cup fell to the little Lyons wizard, whose recent form has been anything but a pillar on which to build hope. But to-day Cochet was not the Cochet of Wimbledon. He strove to recall his genius from the past, and he succeeded. He swept away the nervousness which seemed to have overcome him at the beginning of the match, and, despite the treacherous condition of the court caused by the rain, he treated the spectators to a display of lawn tennis reminiscent of his greatest days. His placing was deadly accurate, and he found the extreme corners of the court with all his old precision. Perry played a great fighting game for England, and, in spite of making some perilous stumbles at the moment of making his strokes, he soon ran away for a 4-1 lead. But his luck was out. He seemed to be upset by some bad line decision, against which the crowd protested, and Cochet pulled up to take the set.

Rain continued to fall heavily, and, with so much depending on the result, it was ridiculous to carry on. With both slithering about the court in the second set, Perry succeeded in getting away for a 5-1 lead, at which point play was stopped. Perry won the next game on resuming, and levelled at one set all.

Austin was in his very best form against Borotra, and played a confident and "brainy" game. He left the spectacular to Borotra, and concentrated on making every shot a move in a deeply-laid scheme. So well did he succeed in these tactics that he often had Borotra puzzled. Borotra was not his old exhilarating self, and, instead of being the gay cavalier, he was worried by his inability to hold Austin. He repeatedly shook his head, lifted his hands in despair, and pulled at his beret as if in search of inspiration.

[A description of the matches will be found on page 11.]

DUBLIN HOSPITAL "SWEEPS."

ROTUNDA DECIDES TO PARTICIPATE.

BOARD'S MAJORITY DECISION.

THE Board of Governors of the Rotunda Hospital, Dublin, has decided by a two-thirds majority of its members that the institution shall participate in the sweepstakes promoted and organised by the Irish Hospitals' Trust, Ltd. It is considered unlikely that the hospital will be permitted to join in the sweepstake on the Manchester November Handicap, as its inclusion now would mean that arrangements already made by the sweepstake authorities would be upset. In all probability the Rotunda Hospital will be asked to wait for the next sweepstake, which will be held on the Grand National in 1932. No official decision to this effect has yet been reached by the Hospitals' Trust, Ltd., but present circumstances point in that direction.

The decision of the Rotunda Hospital Board of Governors has created much discussion in the city and elsewhere. Since sweepstakes were first legalised in the Irish Free State the authorities of the Rotunda Hospital have been strongly opposed to the principle of "sweeps," which, it was said, encouraged gambling and other vices.

THE VOTING.

The Archbishop of Dublin (the Most Rev. Dr. Gregg), who has expressed disapproval of sweepstakes in recent sermons and speeches, is a member of the Hospital Committee, and, indeed, presided at the meeting of the Committee at which the decision to join the sweepstakes was taken. The voting was seventeen in favour of sweepstakes to eight against. The members of the Board agreed mutually that no report of the proceedings, beyond a bare announcement of the decision, should be made public; but since then it has become known that the Archbishop of Dublin and others who agree with his view expressed their opinions in pretty plain terms. Individual members of the Board are reluctant to discuss or comment on the decision, or on the proceedings at the meeting, beyond making it quite clear that there was no heat in the speeches, that both sides were heard at length, and then it came to a straight vote.

The Archbishop of Dublin declines to discuss, or say anything on, the decision.

MRS. GREGG'S FUND.

The appeal made by Mrs. Gregg, wife of the Archbishop, for funds to support the Rotunda Hospital now collapses. One specific ground put forward in support of this appeal, to which roughly, thirteen hundred pounds had been subscribed, was that the hospital was completely independent of sweepstakes, and would not take any benefits secured by such methods.

In view of the Board's decision, the money already contributed must be returned to subscribers. This decision was made also at the Board meeting, and it is learned that the work of returning the subscriptions will be undertaken this week.

Many prominent Irishmen, whose opinions on the merits and demerits of sweepstakes are well known, are members of the Board of Governors of the Rotunda Hospital. They include Mr. Garrett W. Walker, Mr. George N. Jacob, Mr. Alexander D. Orr, Dr. E. Hastings Tweedy, the Ven. the Archdeacon of Dublin, Alderman Myles Keogh, Dr. T. P. C. Kirkpatrick, the Rev. Canon E. H. Lewis-Crosby, Mr. Richard P. Pim, Captain A. Ronald Nutting, Alderman Hubbard Clark, Professor E. H. Alton, the Right Hon. H. G. Burgess, Mr. C. E. Riley, Baron de Freyne, Mr. Henry B. Pollock, the Earl of Wicklow, Lord HolmPatrick, Dr. Gibbon Fitzgibbon, Mr. H. C. Hamilton, Mr. William Stewart, Dr. Bethel Solomons (Master).

LATE NEWS.

BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH "THE TIMES."

THE LESSON FOR BRITAIN.

EFFECT OF LACK OF CONFIDENCE.

The Times, in an editorial article, says:—The main lesson of the international crisis for this country is that national stability depends upon the measure in which a State can inspire confidence, not only abroad, but among its own nationals. It is precisely a lack of confidence in the direction of its domestic policy to meet its needs and conform to the limits of its resources from which this nation has the most to fear.

There is no sign whatever (proceeds The Times) that the Government are ready to take any effective steps to avert a danger of which Mr. Snowden himself has given the most portentous warning. In his Budget speech he based his hopes of economies on the work of the Royal Commission on Unemployment Insurance and of the Economy Committee. The interim report of the Royal Commission treated unemployment in strict obedience to the Government's instructions as an emergency problem The Government's treatment of the report is a denial that any emergency exists As a result of the report, they have produced a bill, which, in addition to other defects, must fail to produce any but a negligible economy. The fact is a sinister omen for the Report of the Economy Committee, for that forthcoming document, too, can now only expect the summary rejecting of any of its recommendations, which conflict with the Socialist theory that public expenditure is an admirable engine for the redistribution of wealth.

LACK OF ECONOMY.

Mr. Baldwin was amply justified in declaring at Sevenoaks on Saturday that the present Government can only be relied upon to swell already swollen expenditure. To make matters worse, they and their Liberal allies refuse to try any variation of our fiscal system, which might prove both an alternative source of revenue and an industrial tonic. Mr. Baldwin's explanations that a Conservative Government would insist that tariffs should be experimental, break in vain upon the rock of official bigotry. Sir Herbert Samuel, at Darwen, responds with an imaginary picture of a despotic and expensive Tariff Commission dictating the raising of prices from behind closed doors in defiance of the will of Parliament. This picture, as Captain Guest showed in a letter published on Saturday, is a travesty of what a Tariff Commission in this country would do, and is symptomatic of the policy of all-embracing negation to which both the artist and the Government which he supports have been reduced. The results of refusing to save, and of refusing even to move, are written in the national accounts. When the audit is held a neglected and suffering nation will look for a better excuse than that its directors have been thoughtful for others.

A determined effort is being made by the Hungarian Government to ensure a satisfactory sale of the crops, and so assist the large agrarian population (says Reuter). The Minister of Finance yesterday issued two decrees, one allowing grain merchants to dispose of the sums necessary for the purchase of these crops and also making it possible to borrow money for this purpose when necessary, while the other decree releases from bank deposits the sums necessary for the settlement of bills of exchange falling due and discounted by banks.

PILGRIMAGE OF FAITH.

MOUNTAIN TOP DEVOTIONS.

CROAGH PATRICK ANNIVERSARY.

From Our Reporter.

WESTPORT, Sunday.

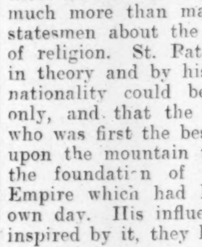
DAWN broke this morning, ragged and grey, on the spectacle of a thousand ardent pilgrims trudging laboriously, in long winding columns, up the steep slopes of Croagh Patrick, treading the path which St. Patrick trod fifteen hundred years ago. They surged up the mountain side from midnight until noon, in a ceaseless stream, towards the lofty summit which towered above them concealed from view by forbidding clouds. A drenching downpour which broke out in the early hours failed to discourage them, and later the weather turned gloriously fine.

Those who have made the pilgrimage year after year agree that this is the best weather that has been experienced for many a year. Over thirty thousand people were poured into Westport during the week, and every corner of Ireland must have contributed its quota, apart from visitors from other lands. Throughout this morning loaded 'buses disgorged their human freights at the foot of Croagh Patrick, cars and cycles converged upon it from every direction, and aged peasant women, weighed down with years, but upheld with burning faith, walked all night to reach the mountain this morning.

Before beginning the long climb, in company with artisans from the cities, nuns, priests and friars, and smartly dressed tourists, many trudged barefooted over the mud, rocks, turf and sharp-edged shifting stones, and then, on arrival at the crest, dropped on their bared knees to make the Stations of the Cross. By eleven o'clock close on two thousand people must have been gathered on the mountain in the cold swirling mist, with reinforcements pouring up every moment. Crowds waited with unbroken fasts for the hour to attend Mass in the little oratory celebrated by twenty-five priests and monks, including six from the United States. Amongst those who attended was noticed Mr. Fitzgerald-Kenney, the Minister for Justice.

IRISH PEOPLE'S FAITH.

A sermon was delivered on the summit by the Rev. Father Flannan, O.S.F.C., Cork, who, in reference to St. Patrick's retirement to solitude, and his one desire was to pray for the people of Ireland that God would keep intact their faith. That St. Patrick's prayers was granted they could scarcely doubt, for what else could account for the steadfast adherence of the Irish people to that faith which he planted? St. Patrick's work was, perhaps unparalleled in the missionary history of the Church. It required a long and laborious preparation which he underwent under Divine guidance. Having been prepared for his mission by God St. Patrick set out to win Ireland for Christ, and that his success had surpassed his fondest dreams they could well imagine. He had achieved a religious and social upheaval by his teaching to Irish social life, not by the total destruction of already existing laws, but by a careful revision and adaptation of these laws to his new teaching. He knew much more than many of their modern statesmen about the true social function of religion. St. Patrick recognised both in theory and by his practices that true nationality could be based on religion only, and that the best citizen was he who was first the best Christian. It was upon the mountain that Patrick secured the foundation of that Irish spiritual Empire which had lasted even to their own day. His influence still lived, and, inspired by it, they had struggled up the mountain.



Dr. Gilmartin.

A sermon in Irish was preached by the Rev. E. O'Donoghue, of Louisburgh. The Archbishop of Tuam, Dr. Gilmartin, who preached at Westport Cathedral this morning, said that, about some of the details of St. Patrick's life there might be uncertainty, but it was absolutely certain that the Church be founded in Ireland was the identical Catholic Church of to-day.

They had been robbed of their Church and Church land, but they had kept the faith which St. Patrick begot them, and, in that faith, they were richer than if they possessed all the treasures of this world. The Protestant Church had Henry the Eighth and Elizabeth, but the Catholic Church had St. Patrick. These could not exist in the same fold.

Dr. Healy, in his "Life of St. Patrick," stated that while St. Patrick was praying and fasting for Ireland on the summit of Croagh Patrick, he sent a message of homage and subjection to the new Pope, Leo the Great, and the annals of Ulster of the year 441 recorded what appeared to be the Pope's reply, as follows:—

"Leo ordained forty-second Bishop of the Church of Rome, and Patrick, the Bishop, was approved in the Catholic Faith."

MESSAGE TO THE POPE.

In any case this quotation was evidence that St. Patrick, who was sent by Celestine, was approved by Leo. If St. Patrick could be with them in body as well as in spirit, the Archbishop said, he believed he would exhort them to send a message of loyalty and sympathy to the present successor of Celestine and Leo, whose battle for the rights of the Church and the rights of conscience was commanding the admiration of the Christian world. He was sure that he had their enthusiastic approval in sending the following message to His Holiness:—

"Many thousands of children of St. Patrick, joined by the Archbishop, clergy and people of the Archdiocese of Tuam in the annual national pilgrimage to Croagh Patrick, most humbly offer their prayers, allegiance and sympathy to Pius XI. on the splendid stand His Holiness is making for the rights of the Church and the rights of conscience."

WICKLOW HILLS, Sunday.

HALF-WAY between Annamoe and Glendalough there is a hill that is gold in spring and purple in summer. A grey ribbon of road rides across it, and there is a cottage that has sheltered no tenant for many a long day; for Laragh Hill, for all its loveliness, is a lonely place.

A week ago strangers came and opened the gate of the garden. Thereafter many hands were busy with paint and whitewash, and the rooms that had grown silent re-echoed to the laughter and song of young voices.

On Saturday evening a 'bus took me from St. Stephen's Green to Laragh, and there, as the guest of the new tenants, I stayed until to-day. Two lusty brown-skinned and bare-legged youths in shorts and shirts, met me at the foot of the hill. They were members of the newly-formed Irish Youth Hostel Association, or—to give it its Gaelic title—An Oige. It was evident that they had been foraging: for they bore between them innumerable strangely-shaped packages, a tightly-packed ruck-sack, and a tin of paraffin oil.

As we climbed to their newly-acquired headquarters we espied, ahead of us, two bare-headed girls, in workmanlike frocks. They, my companions informed me, were also members of the Association, and were bound for their own separate hostel, a mile further along our route.

COOKING A MEAL.

In a little while we came to a wood of pine trees, where the light wind flecked the grasses to and fro. There in a clearing a girl in a flowered frock was building a great fire of branches, running hither and thither for her tinder. Now half-hidden from view, now completely obscured by the swirling smoke of the log fire, she seemed, with fleeting feet and her hair floating behind her, like some Dryad of the woods.

We crossed a wall of loose stones and found that the Dryad had sisters—at least she had companions, who were engaged in cooking. The smell of omelettes and bacon intermingled with that of the pine logs, and in a moment our introductions were over and we were sampling the repast. That meal was as long as it was appetising. Relays of volunteers took it in turn with pot and pan, for no sooner did it seem that the wants of one individual had been satisfied than a new call was made on the culinary workers. Newcomers in ones and twos—all apparently coming from different points of the compass—hailed us from the roadside, or loomed up through the trees, and, without more ado than to say "Hallo everybody," slipped their packs from their shoulders and joined the circle round the fire. Each one had a membership card, a veritable passport, complete with photograph and description.

As dusk drew on, however, the roads from Dublin and Wicklow, from Bray and Enniskerry, brought fewer and fewer additions to the circle, and soon, when pipes and cigarettes had been lit, the party went, according to sex, to their various hostels. Most, if not all, of the trampers were eager for bed: for many of them had covered a score of miles during the afternoon. Some there were, however, for whom the day was loth to go.

ASSOCIATION'S OBJECTS.

I shared a room at the hostel with three of the trampers—a Dublin solicitor, an official of the Great Northern Railway and a Trinity College lecturer. Lying on my camp bed, which, with blankets and bedding, is provided for every member at the cost of 1s. per night, I learned that one of the objects of the Association is to familiarise the youth of Ireland with their own country and its history, and to provide healthy opportunities for the exchange of ideas. The Association hopes to provide a chain of hostels throughout Wicklow and other Irish places of interest. At present four such hostels are in operation in County Wicklow, two at Laragh and two at Lough Dan, and others are in the course of preparation. Every hostel has its own storeroom, where members can purchase foodstuffs and other commodities. I slept well, and was awakened by some of the earlier risers setting out for Church.

THE WOMEN'S HOSTEL.

During the day I visited the Women's Hostel in the grounds of Laragh House. Here, close to the farm, a residence formerly occupied by the steward of the estate, has been turned into camping quarters as ideal as one could wish, with large airy bedrooms, dining and living quarters, and every convenience for cooking. From here I saw the tenants of last night set out on their various routes, a happy party of carefree, healthy, laughing girls.

It has been difficult in writing this article to avoid using a term, which for some reason is becoming increasingly popular as a means of referring to walkers and the art of walking. According to one of the most modern English dictionaries the term "to hike" means "to pull up, to draw back."

The young walkers of Ireland who were my very good hosts of yesterday and to-day, would not, I feel sure, be content that these definitions should be applied to their methods of recreational exercise. Their Association represents, to my mind at least, a great forward step, and not a retrograde one, in the national life. Let me then, in remembering them and their ideals, refer to them as shulers, an old Irish term that confers a certain dignity on all those who tramp the roads of Ireland. And real good shulers they are.

NEW CHURCH FOR SHANKILL.

BLESSING OF THE CORNER STONE.

CEREMONY PERFORMED BY ARCHBISHOP.

The Most Rev. Dr. Byrne, Archbishop of Dublin, solemnly blessed the corner stone of the new Church of St. Anne at Shankill, Co. Dublin, yesterday.

Of beautiful design in the Romanesque style, it stands on a commanding site in the Vale of Shanganagh.

On his arrival at the outskirts of the parish, at Loughlinstown, his Grace was received by a great gathering of the parishioners and a guard of honour of the Irish National Foresters in costume. He was escorted by a procession to the church site, where troops of Catholic Boy Scouts formed another guard of honour. The ceremony was witnessed by several thousand people.

His Grace was assisted by the Rev. J. Killeen, C.C., Ballybrack; the Rev. J. Ryan, C.C., Blackrock; the Rev. M. Murphy, C.C., Pro-Cathedral, Dublin, Master of Ceremonies, and Very Rev. J. P. Sherwin, P.P., Ballybrack.

The other clergy present were:—Very Rev. J. Canon Kelly, P.P., V.F., Sandyford; Very Rev. R. F. Canon Bowden, P.P., Bray; Very Rev. J. Ryan, P.P., Foxrock; Very Rev. J. Flanagan, P.P., Fairview; the Very Rev. J. Kennedy, P.P., Enniskerry; the Rev. J. Redmond, C.C., Ballybrack; the Rev. F. A. Gleeson, C.C., Bray; the Rev. C. Finegan, C.C., Cabinteely; the Rev. J. Dwyer, C.C., Dublin; the Rev. G. Henry, Fairview; the Rev. M. Sheehan, do.

THE PUBLIC MEETING.

After the ceremony, His Grave presided at a public meeting, when the Very Rev. Father Sherwin, P.P., submitted his report, in which he stated that they had a considerable portion of the work already commenced. The need for the church at Shankill was a long-felt want, and the people prayed for that day when His Grace would bless the corner stone of their church. When His Grace appointed him to that parish he requested him, as soon as the work of renovating the parish church was completed, to take in hands this more needed task of erecting the church at Shankill. The site was given by Mr. Patrick Field, who had also provided that, if a parochial house or presbytery were ever necessary, it could be erected in the grounds. (Applause.) The new church was being built of local granite, to the design of Messrs. Oghlan and Coleman, architects. The building of the whole church could not yet be entertained, but they had determined to build such portion as would solve the necessities of the people. The portion of the church which they were building would cost about £11,000 or £12,000—the chancel would cost another £2,000, and the apse £1,500. He had received £4,800 towards the cost. (Applause.)

"EPOCH-MAKING EVENT."

His Grace, in congratulating Father Sherwin on the manner in which he had proceeded with the work, said to him personally that it was a great pleasure and delight to come amongst the people of that district on that occasion. The building of the parochial church was an epoch making event anywhere, but especially amongst their people. There was one work which always gave him great pleasure, and that was laying the foundation stone of a church. When he looked into the future, and saw a great highway passing by that church to the South of Ireland, he saw also another highway—a ladder reaching from this church to Heaven—angels ascending and descending, bearing the prayers of the faithful.

Since he became Archbishop of that diocese he had worried a great deal about that district of Tillystown. It was a poor one, and the church was badly needed. The Library was scarcely a suitable place in which to worship, and he thought how difficult it would be to find either a site or the means of building the church. But God had provided both for them. Mr. Field, a very generous benefactor, had done yeoman work in giving the site, and God would reward him. (Applause.)

Mr. J. M. Fitzgerald, K.C., in moving that a subscription list be opened, said they hoped to see erected a church which would not only be a source of pride to their Archbishop, but would be a noble monument to the devotion and zeal of their parish.

Count O'Byrne, who seconded, said his Grace had been described as the greatest church builder in the annals of the diocese, but he should also be described as the most generous. (Applause.)

Amongst the subscriptions received were:—His Grace, £1,000; Mr. J. P. Butler, Killiney, £250; the Very Rev. Father Sherwin, £100; Miss Synnott, £50; Mr. J. Devlin, B.L., Sandycove, and Mrs. Devlin, £25; Count O'Byrne, £20.

On the motion of Major Dease, seconded by Mr. Owen Clarke, a vote of thanks was passed to his Grace.

Amongst those present were:—Countess van Cutsem, Lady Fingall, Messrs. R. J. Kidney, E. M. Lloyd, P. J. Hernon, Manager Dun Laoghaire Borough; S. M. Ashlin, T. A. Coleman, J. P. Butler, J. Delahunty, P. Field, T. Field, Misses Healy, Jules Vambech.

PILGRIMAGE TO CROAGH PATRICK

CITY MANAGER AND CORK DOCTORS.

"NO CAUSE FOR DISPUTE."

REFUSAL TO TREAT PATIENTS.

MR. Philip Monahan, Cork City Manager, replying to a letter from Mr. C. T. F. Russell, solicitor, defending the action of Dr. Barter, visiting ophthalmic surgeon to Cork County Home, and of some Cork doctors, in refusing to treat school children of the county, points out that statements in the letter are "entirely misleading."

It will be recalled that Dr. Barter's resignation was called for by the Ministry of Health on the grounds that he refused to treat children admitted to hospital under the schools' medical services scheme.

Referring to the statement that Dr. Barter fully explained to him on the evening before the meeting that the objection of the Munster Ophthalmological and Laryngological Society was to the proposed standard of weekly income, which would entitle patients to be treated under the scheme, Mr. Monahan states:—

"It suggests that the question of means was the only question in dispute. If Dr. Barter endeavoured to convey such a meaning to me he failed. His failure may well be due to my stupidity, but the course of our conversation leads me to believe that he did not intend to convey to me that one point alone was in dispute.

"The conversation began on my initiative. I sought to avoid the unpleasant task which was to be mine on the following day, and I suggested to Dr. Barter that his society had no cause for dispute with the County Hospital. I reminded him that on the question of fees no question of extra maintenance cost arose. I reminded him also that the hospital had employed a doctor approved by his society, and I was aware that an offer had been made to that society to deal with the question of paying patients as they arose, on a statement of means, which his society had admitted was satisfactory.

"So far from Dr. Barter explaining the position to me, it was I who explained the position to him, in the hope that it would be unnecessary to call for his resignation. He complained of the refusal of the Minister for Local Government and Public Health to discuss the matter with his society, suggesting that I should endeavour to bring about a meeting. To that I replied that I could not intervene in the matter of the dispute with the Board of Health. I pointed out that his society was insisting on the employment of a full-time ophthalmic surgeon, I explained that I thought it an impertinence on the part of his society to attempt to take upon itself the powers of the Minister to decide such a question. In my own mind, I thought him presumptuous in thinking for a moment that the Minister would discuss the propriety of his society exacting fees from men earning 30s. or 35s. a week. So much for Dr. Barter's full explanation to me.

"As regards the refusal to treat patients, it is possible that no urgent case was refused treatment. In one case I am aware of, doctors actually refused to see a child. Apart from the callous nature of such conduct, it is more important to point out that this refusal of treatment was a refusal to carry out their own undertaking, given in writing."

BIG DEATH-ROLL IN FIRE.

AGED POOR HOME DESTROYED.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
PITTSBURG, Saturday.

Thirty-three inmates of the Little Sisters of the Poor Home for the Aged are dead, twenty are missing, and the number of injured is estimated at 195 following a fire which broke out here late last night.

In the raging inferno that enveloped the helpless old people many pathetic sights were witnessed. Some of the inmates were blind, and numbers prayed on their knees while the flames licked their night clothes, others, forgetting in their terror their sixty or eighty years, leapt from the upper storeys into fire nets spread below.

The heavy loss is due to the fact that most of the inmates were abed when the fire broke out. The nuns and religious brothers of a neighbouring order performed many deeds of heroism in rescuing the aged folk, but their modesty is such that it is difficult to get them to give an account of their bravery.

ALSATIANS ON SHOW

GERMAN JUDGE AT DUBLIN EXHIBITION.

An exhibition of Alsatian dogs, under the auspices of the Alsatian or German Shepherd Dog Club, and with the licence of the Irish Kennel Club, was held on Saturday last at Clarke's Riding Academy, Montpelier Hill, Dublin. There were close on 130 entries in the sixteen classes, some of the exhibitors being from Northern Ireland and England.

Excellent specimens of the Alsatian breed were on view, and the winner of the Green Star, both in gait and outline, was greatly admired.

The judge in the show classes was Herr Schertel, who came specially from Germany for the work, and his awards were generally approved. The general arrangements were carried out under the supervision of Mr. D. J. Smyth, hon. secretary; Miss G. M. Bligh, Mr. F. C. Bernard and Mr. H. L. Lochner.

DICTATORSHIP AT AN END.

CIVIL JUNTA ASSUMES CONTROL.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
SANTIAGA DE CHILE, Sunday.

THE four years dictatorship of General Carlos Ibañez ended to-day with his resignation.

This step was taken by the dictator following on a conference he had this afternoon with leading Chileans to discuss the best way of ending the present crisis.

General Ibañez told the conference that if his person were an obstacle to a settlement he was willing to resign. The upshot was that he did resign, giving a mandate to Señor Opazo, President of the Senate; Señor Blanquier (who a few days ago resigned a short-lived Premiership owing to disagreement with General Ibañez) and Señor Montero to form a civil junta to carry on the Government.

NEW PRESIDENT.

Señor Opazo was chosen President of the Junta, and then assumed the Presidency of the Republic.

The tense excitement that had been prevailing in the city was at once dispelled by this announcement. Discontent with the dictatorship had been gathering strength for some time, and was lately accentuated by the summary way that General Ibañez seems to have overruled his Cabinet, three of his Ministers having resigned this month.

Serious rioting occurred here on the occasion of the funeral of a medical student who was killed during the students' riots, and the city was patrolled by thousands of soldiers.

TOLL OF THE RIOTING.

Five persons, it is now reported, were killed during the rioting and twenty others wounded. It is estimated that forty persons have been killed since Thursday.

Some of the worst of the disturbances took place outside the British Club, where two persons were killed in the fighting.

General Ibañez escaped from the city in an ambulance for an unknown destination, while crowds, shouting "Death to Ibañez," paraded the streets searching for the fallen Dictator. The rumour spread that he had fled to the United States Embassy, but the United States Ambassador told the mob that the General was not there, and that he would be refused admittance if he applied.

The Commander-in-Chief has announced that the Army is at the orders of the Provisional Government.

FIVE DEATHS IN CAISSON.

HEROIC FOREMAN'S SACRIFICE.

FIVE men were overcome by foul air in a caisson, or cylinder, sunk into the water on the river front at the new Ford works at Dagenham, Essex, on Saturday morning. Their names were:—

William O'Donnel, aged 26, foreman, of Melba Gardens, Tilbury.
Maurice McGeevor, Elizabeth street, Bradford, Manchester.
James O'Neill and Patrick O'Neill (brothers), Nelson street, Bradford.
Joseph Kelly, of Goresbrook road, Dagenham.

William O'Donnel sacrificed his life in an effort to rescue his four comrades.

The men were excavating at the bottom of a big cylinder, fifteen feet below the surface of the ground. When they failed to signal, O'Donnel, realising that something was wrong, made his way to the top of the cylinder, and saw the four lying in a heap. Although he must have known the danger, he went to their assistance, but was himself overcome by the gas that had collected in the cylinder.

CONVICT TAKES THE AIR.

"PHYSICAL JERKS" ON PRISON ROOF.

UNUSUAL THRILL FOR ONLOOKERS.

THE spectacle of a scantily clad prisoner perched on the roof of Barlinnie Prison doing "physical jerks," was witnessed by hundreds of people at Glasgow yesterday. Shortly after three o'clock residents of the district were startled when they observed a convict climbing the pipes of the recreation hall, a building some sixty feet high inside the prison, with cat-like agility. The man reached the top of the pipes in a few seconds, and, pulling himself on to the sloping roof, he immediately commenced to take off his shoes and stockings. Apparently he took this precaution to prevent himself from slipping on the slates.

The man spent some time on the roof basking in the sunshine with his arms outstretched and his feet resting on the guttering. He then divested himself of his jacket, using it as a pillow. Warders meanwhile kept vigil below.

The crowds of onlookers gasped with amazement when the man rose from his precarious position and then commenced to walk up the roof. He stopped suddenly, and, balancing himself with the skill of a tight-rope walker, commenced to indulge in "physical jerks."

First of all he performed dumb-bell exercises, and later tried balancing himself on one foot. Then the sun went down, and the man, apparently feeling the effects of the chilly wind, put on his jacket and sat down near the centre of the roof.

People who took up vantage points on a road on the west side of the prison were able to carry on a conversation with the man, who shouted a request for two hard-boiled eggs.

Warders inside the grounds could be heard shouting to the man to come down, but he refused. As it was only possible for the officials to reach the man by climbing the pipes, he was allowed to remain there. Periodically he walked across the roof and jumped from one part to another, despite the danger of slipping and falling sixty feet to the ground.

Shortly after 8 o'clock he was persuaded to come down.

WAR ON THE SLUMS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The letter recently published by the Lord Mayor and the encouraging communiqué issued last week by the Corporation lead one to believe that our civic authorities are animated by the right spirit. Of special interest is the note that the City Manager has been directed to consider how best to secure powers to enable him to acquire city sites at a reasonable cost. This is a really crucial question. On it largely depend our prospects of housing the very poor at a rent within their means. In the Star of March 3rd, 1929, it is stated that the cost per acre has been as high as £4,000 (in one case £10,000).

I am informed that in a recent case it was £3,000; further, that an exorbitant price was paid for two old stables occupying part of a site which was lately acquired. Plainly, the present arbitration procedure, under which this has been possible, is futile as a protection of the ratepayer and fatal to the hopes of the humbler tenant for a home at a moderate rent.

It is not that sites are lacking. A Dublin business man was kind enough to place his highly expert knowledge of this particular aspect of the problem at my disposal. First he took me to visit respectable families living, eight or nine persons to the room, in houses where the walls were falling away from the window frames. Some, being pre-war tenants, were paying 3s. 6d. to 5s. only; but those of more recent date as much as 7s. or 9s. per room. Some said that they could not go far from their present locality, and gave good reasons; others would gladly move to a distance. Those at the lower rents would willingly pay more for decent accommodation. My guide next demonstrated to me with the help of his car that within the old city boundary, and on undeveloped land but within the extended boundary at a distance not too far for the city worker, there is room for many thousands of families. The space could, he considered, be acquired under a reasonable procedure at a reasonable cost.

The derelict city sites call, I submit, for immediate action. They constitute a public nuisance. Depressing, demoralising and injurious to the health of all around, they are a disgrace and danger which no city can afford to tolerate. They should be taken over by the public authority; it is doubtful, to say the least, whether in such cases there is a valid claim for compensation.

Some are large enough for a housing scheme under public auspices. Smaller ones might be let to philanthropic societies, such as that of which Canon Hall is a director, or private individuals who undertook to erect workmen's dwellings. Many should be converted into playgrounds; our shortage here is a serious factor in the problem, so much damage is done, so much harm suffered, by children in tenement houses. Others might be used for allotments, some of the smallest might be converted into ornamental gardens, as Miss Geddes has shown in Scotland.

It is useless to harass the citizen on his holiday; yet those concerned in this agitation cannot afford to be idle, and they will not. In eleven weeks the Dail will reassemble and the time for action will be come. I believe that our statesmen are sincere in the interest they profess; but here is the acid test of their faith. Will they put the Housing Bill first on their programme when the Dail meets again, and will the deputies, regardless of party, co-operate with all their heart? We are tired of lip-service; we want deeds. We have no use for men who will give us reasons why the thing that must be done cannot be done. We want a man to tell us how it can be done. The business community are convinced that it can be done and should be done. No wonder. It is universally recognised nowadays that in business premises a creditable appearance is a real asset, well worth paying for; and, equally, no city can be prosperous which presents to all comers our dismal spectacles of dilapidation and decay. Delenda est Carthago; we must wipe our slums off the map.—Yours, etc.,

SCOUTS AND PEACE.

GENERAL HICKIE'S VIEWS.

FAIR IN SUPPORT OF BRITISH LEGION GROUP.

The "Puck Fair," held last Saturday at Woodbrook, County Wicklow, kindly lent for the occasion by Sir Stanley Cochrane, was organised by the Scout movement in Ireland in aid of the British Legion Boy Scouts, a non-self-supporting group composed of ex-Service men's sons and near relatives. In order to attend and open the fair, General Sir William B. Hickie, K.C.B., President of the British Legion in the Free State, gave up a prior engagement. Admiral of the Fleet Earl Jellicoe was unable to attend, but wrote expressing "every warm good wishes for the success of the fair, knowing how good is the object with which it is being held."

"I shall not forget my inspection of the British Legion Boy Scouts in October, nor the good impression I formed of them," he added.

The Earl of Meath also wrote regretting that he could not be present.

NOT SELF-SUPPORTING.

Scout Commissioner G. S. Childs, who introduced General Hickie, said that the British Legion Boy Scouts came into existence last year with the approval of the British Legion and Boy Scout headquarters. It was the first group of its kind in all Ireland. Unlike an ordinary Scout group, it was not self-supporting, and it was realised that if they were to carry on the good work of training these boys to be good, useful and healthy citizens some special effort must be made to secure the necessary funds. These lads were close relatives of ex-Service men, and it was quite possible that if their parents had not answered the call at the outbreak of the war, they would have had a better chance in the battle of life.

With the approval of area headquarters this fair had been organised. These lads were worthy of their support. They had brought credit to the Legion and to themselves on a number of occasions. They had provided fine guards of honour for Earl Jellicoe, the International Scout Commissioner, and their President. Funds derived from the fair would be placed under the control of a special British Legion scout committee, and a proper trust deed would be completed. General Sir William Hickie had done them a high honour that afternoon in abandoning an important meeting to come to their aid and open the fair. (Applause.)

FOR PEACE.

Sir William Hickie, in declaring the fair open, and congratulating the Committee and all concerned in it, said that the fair could not have had a better object. The world at large must always be profoundly grateful to Lord Baden-Powell for his great idea, and for the manner in which he carried it out. One had only to read the text books of the Association, to follow its activities, and to watch the moral and physical effect on the boyhood of the nations of the world to realise how valuable an asset it had been.

There were people who, for want of something better to do, would criticise any constructive work, and some of them, having no other charge to make, complained that the boy scout movement was military in its effects. It was his (General Hickie's) opinion that the greatest organisations which were at work for the peace of the world to-day were, firstly, those composed of the ex-combatants of all nations, who had taken part in the great tragedy of the world war; and, secondly, the organisation of the boy scouts throughout the world.

It was for their scout leaders to teach them the laws. It was for the boys to see that they obeyed them, and that they were worthy and loyal scouts. He would like to take the opportunity to appeal to young men who could spare time, and who had health and energy, to come forward and help the movement by qualifying for the important positions of scout masters.

"SECOND TO NONE."

Sir William Hickie went on to say that he hoped that the scouts would never lose an opportunity of attending the jamborees and gatherings of scouts in other countries. There was no greater help towards peace at home and abroad than was to be got from such meetings.

In conclusion, he said that he knew that it was needless for him to add that w[illegible] scouts, they went overseas, representing their country, they would show by their smartness, their efficiency and their discipline that the Irish Boy Scouts were second to none. (Applause.)

In spite of the rain the fair was a great success.

The Organising Committee comprised:—Commissioner S. Childs, chairman; Mrs. M. Lysaght MacGowan, organiser; Captain J. L. MacGowan, hon. secretary; Mr. J. Coates, hon. treasurer; and Miss E. J. Tutty, Mrs. Coates, Miss E. Morris, Miss M. Lysaght MacGowan, Major J. J. Tynan, D.S.O.; Commander B. Howe, R.N.; Mr. W. Lee, Mr. F. F. Elvery and Mr. C. Millar.

Among the visitors and other helpers were: Colonel the Hon. Claude Brabazon, Mrs. Brabazon, the Misses Brabazon, Colonel F. Tottenham, Mrs. Day, Captain Pepper, Chancellor G. D. Scott, Commissioner Miss K. Scott, Major Maunsell, Sir William Smyllie, the Misses Smyllie, the Rev. P. Furlong, C.C., Enniskerry; Dr. James Ashe, Mrs. MacSweeney, Mr. P. J. Medlar, T.C.; Mr. and Mrs. A. F. McNulty, Commissioners E. W. Sarratt, W. M. Carte, G. MacBeth, Mr. and Mrs. Randall Howe, Mr. C. W. Guest, Major Conan, Mr. and Mrs. Fred. White, Mr. and Mrs. W. Redmond, Mr. and Mrs. William Tutty, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Magee, Major Bird, Mr. C. Crampton, Miss MacAlister, Mr. and Mrs. M. Gilvary, Scout Master Dunn, Liverpool.

Several contingents of ex-Service men, wearing their decorations, marched to the Fair ground.

The wedding took place at St. James's Church, Spanish Place, London, on Wednesday last, of Miss Rosaleen Byrne, elder daughter of Dr. and Mrs. P. J. Byrne, Clonmel, and Mr. Hilton St. John Smith, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Verney Smith, Jos, Nigeria.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of white lace, embroidered with seed pearls and diamanté, and carried a sheaf of Madonna lilies, given her by the bridegroom. Her head-dress of old Brussels lace, forming the train as well, was lent by her mother. The bridesmaids were Miss Gwendoline Byrne (sister of the bride), Miss Violet Wenger (cousin), Miss Turville Petre, and Miss Marjory Jordan, who wore Victorian dresses of eau-de-nil spotted muslin, mittens, and flower wreaths on their heads.

The best man was Mr. James Wenger Byrne, brother of the bride. The marriage Service was conducted by the Rev. Father Lynguane. The bride's mother was dressed in a beige lace gown and sable fur. The bridegroom's mother wore a French gown of black and white satin, with coat to match.

After the church ceremony the guests were entertained to luncheon by the bride's parents at the Langham Hotel. Afterwards Mr. and Mrs. H. St. John Smith left for a two months' tour of central Europe. The bride's going-away dress was a pale pink printed chiffon, with coatee and pink straw hat to match.

DUBLIN COLLISION.

CAR PASSENGERS AND WORKMEN INJURED.

Miss Annie Fitzgerald, of Lower Mount street, Dublin, and a workman named Michael Hyland, who were detained in the Royal City of Dublin Hospital early last Saturday morning following a collision between a motor car and a tramway tower wagon at Ballsbridge, in which they were injured, are making good towards recovery.

The motor car was driven by Mr. Basil McGuckin, of Killead, Shrewsbury road, Dublin, the owner, who was accompanied by Miss Fitzgerald and Miss M. Elliott. It was badly damaged as a result of the collision, as also was the tower wagon, which was being used by workmen who were repairing the wires near the Royal Dublin Society's premises.

Mr. McGuckin was cut about the head and upper part of the body, while Miss Elliott received injuries to the head, and Miss Fitzgerald was injured about the ribs. Hyland, who was working on the tower wagon, sustained a fractured leg, and Michael Scanlon, of Ringsend Park, another workman, suffered from shock.

All the injured were taken to the Royal City of Dublin Hospital, and after treatment Mr. McGuckin, Miss Elliott and Scanlon were able to leave.

The Rev. James P. Stephens (61), Vicar of Pondsbridge, Huntingdon, was suffocated yesterday morning in a fire which occurred at his home. About ten o'clock neighbours noticed a smell of burning, and on the house being entered Mr. Stephens was found lying dead with his head just inside the fireplace. The room was full of smoke, and a chair and the carpet were burning.

WHAT IS THIS SUNSHINE BREAD?

There is no mystery about Sunshine Bread. It is produced by the action of ultra-violet rays during the process of kneading. Ultra-violet ray lamps fixed on the kneading machines saturate the dough with sunshine, stimulating the vital activity inherent in the flour, whether white or brown and effecting an all-round improvement in the bread which is quite remarkable.

A superior loaf is the result The proof is in the eating. Get a loaf to-day. Sunshine Bread is made in the usual shapes, square loaf, turnover, etc., but is manufactured only by

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE.

GOODWOOD CANDIDATES.

BROWN JACK FANCIED FOR THE BIG RACE.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.
LONDON, Friday Night.

It is to be feared that the Goodwood meeting, which begins on Tuesday, will hardly be up to the usual standard. I am not referring to the prospect of bad weather—and that is imminent—but to the quality of racing; for the acceptances this time have been unusually poor.

We never expect to see many of the high-class three-year-olds at Goodwood; for it used to be an axiom among the older trainers that a colt wanted for the St. Leger should not run between Ascot and Doncaster unless in an easy sort of race a week or two before the St. Leger.

Fred. Darling is still a firm believer in this principle, which was doubtless instilled into him by his father, and so, after Cameronian had won at Ascot, it was decided that there would be nothing else for him until Doncaster.

CASE OF CAPTAIN CUTTLE.

Some years ago Darling took his Derby winner, Captain Cuttle, to Goodwood at the earnest request of his owner, Lord Woolavington, whose place is near the course, but the colt virtually broke down in an exercise canter the day after he arrived there.

The Gordon Stakes is about the only race at the meeting that can attract high-class three-year-olds. Orpen, a winner at Liverpool last week, has been left in this, but I hardly expect to see him in the field.

Dawson Waugh, however, told me at Liverpool that he hopes to run his St. Leger colt, Rose en Soleil, in the Goodwood race in order to give him more experience. If Orpen does not run the race should be a good thing for Rose en Soleil.

THE TWO-YEAR-OLDS.

There is no chance of seeing the best of the two-year-olds in opposition, for the Golden Hair colt has no engagement. Cockpen has two, the Ham Stakes and the Molecomb Stakes, and Pollux has only one, the Prince of Wales's Stakes on Thursday, so that there is no possibility of their clashing. I shall be interested to see Pollux again, for he seemed a good colt when he won on the occasion of his début at Newmarket, but when he met the Golden Hair colt at Ascot he was so badly off in the race that he never had a fair chance.

Philander is an improving colt, who will be able to test Pollux should the latter run on Thursday. I cannot see that in the Ham Stakes Cockpen has any opposition worthy of him, but in the Molecomb he can meet Spenser, the winner of the New Stakes at Ascot, as well as Taj Kasra and Shorthand. Cockpen's smart stable companion, Rest, who is in this race, runs, I believe, for the Lavent Stakes on Wednesday.

Some of the handicaps have worked out badly at the acceptance stage. The Drayton Handicap, for example. For this race last year The Recorder won from Racedale, two high class horses in their class. This time a second rate animal like Spinner's Cottage is at the top of the handicap. There have been some important eliminations from the Stewards' Cup, on the first day of the meeting, but there is sufficient material left for a good contest.

PROBLEM OF XANDOVER.

The most interesting problem of the race is that of the top weight, Xandover, with 9st. 10lb. I do not know yet definitely whether he runs. That question may not finally be decided until the arrival of his owner from France and an opportunity for a talk with his trainer, Basil Jarvis. In recent weeks he seems to have greatly pleased the Newmarket observers, which may not mean much, for he entirely displeased them just before he won the July Cup from Stingo, in which race they would not have him at any price. There is no need to remind anyone that I have a great admiration for Xandover, and think him a very brilliant colt.

If he runs for and wins the Stewards' Cup, I shall have a still greater admiration for him; for he has a great deal to do on Tuesday. I shall look to him to take care of the exposed horses, like Diolite, Fleeting Memory, Knight Error, Poor Land, and even of the penalised To You, who is much fancied, despite the colt's extra weight. I am not so sure whether he can give the weight away to some of the three-year-olds—one I have in mind is Zanoff, of whom I wrote here a week ago, and has since come to such a short price that it was difficult to get 6 to 1 about him yesterday. Zanoff did so much in a gallop with Sister Clover as to lead his connections to believe that he has a chance second to none. Grindleton is another three-year-old of whom I have the most flattering accounts. He ran remarkably well for a mile in the Derby, and then won at Ascot with so much in hand that it is hard to say how good he is. In the case of Zanoff, Xandover has to give 31lb., and in the case of Grindleton 34lb. These are big weights to give three-year-olds who have had the summer over their heads.

THE GOODWOOD CUP.

The Goodwood Cup on Thursday should be really interesting, with Brown Jack, Trimdon, Salmon Leap, and, perhaps, Singapore in opposition, the last-named receiving 11lb. from Brown Jack and Trimdon. I shall look hopefully to seeing Brown Jack successful in this race again. He is the only one of them who has successfully compassed the furlong over the two-and-a half miles. Thus proceedings will be enlivened by some bright spots—all we can hope for is June weather, for I know no meeting which can be so easily made or marred by the weather as Goodwood. At present it is very broken, and there was a heavy downpour at Hurst Park yesterday.

There was at least one notable performance at the meeting, and that was given by The Divot, a colt by Bulger out of Orras, who had given a good exhibition when he won at Newmarket on his first appearance, and then made a laudable effort to give 5lb. to Cockpen at Newbury—he was opposed here by winners like Totaig, Connemara Rose, Miss Troy and others, but he made them look cheap; they had not gone more than two furlongs when he had the situation well in hand, and he finished up five lengths to the good in front of Totaig—a sterling good performance, and one which entitled The Divot to a high place among the two-year-olds of the season.

AN EXCITING FINISH.

More exciting was the finish for the Duchess of York Plate, a £1,000 event, which is now a handicap. It was won a short head and a length by Seascape from Philae and Venturer. Seascape is one of the horses that belonged to the late Mr. S. B. Joel, which came up at the sale of his horses at the second July meeting, and was bought by Walter Earl, in whose colours she ran yesterday for her late owner's son, Mr. Dudley Joel, and she made his first winner. Abbot's Worthy, giving Seascape 26lb., was favourite, and Philae, who was second favourite, 22lb. Abbot's Worthy gave out early, but Philae made a good race of it with the filly, who only beat him by a short head, with Venturer a length away third. Little Rickaby rode an excellent race on the winner.

MARY MAC'S CONSISTENCY.

That consistent daughter of Argosy, Mary Mac, won the Vyner Handicap, but it was only by another short head that Donoghue got her home from the improved Segesta. The first selling race, the Wimbledon Handicap, was won by De Mestre's Young Master, by Junior, who beat Frost a length and a half, and was bought in for 550 guineas. The other selling race was won by Captain Boyd-Rochfort with Frosty Bill, who beat F. Winter's gelding, Cantore, by a length and a half, and was then sold to Frank Hartigan for 620 guineas. Fireaway, favourite for the last race—the Kingston Plate—did not run so well as usual, and was beaten out of a place behind Silver Mount, who beat Norman Abbot and Juniper by a length and a half and a head.

GALTEE MORE.

Gossip from Newmarket.

Preparing for Goodwood : Some Fancied Horses.

NEWMARKET, Saturday.

It was dull and rather unpleasant in the early hours, but all we had was a drizzling rain during exercise hours.

With the Goodwood fixture next week, trainers had a busy morning, but one of the features was the good gallop that Boyd-Rochfort gave Jacopo over a mile and a quarter, with J. Childs up, in company with Visellus. Childs had to take two or three pulls at his mount to keep him back to his companion, and it denotes that the son of Sansovino and Black Ray is coming to himself again. Should all go well with him, his trainer has ample time to turn the colt out in excellent trim for the last of the classics.

Our Goodwood Stakes candidates were given good gallops, Day sending his charge, Roi Des Aulnes, the full distance of the race, with Buckshot. He is now allowed 9lb by Blue Vision, who beat him for the Northumberland Plate. That amount should enable him to turn the tables.

Stolen Flame sprang a surprise when he so easily won the Milton Welter here behind the ditches. He will be more forward in condition on Wednesday, and being endowed with the necessary stamina to get the distance, is expected to go close, for he is wonderfully fit and well. Lowrey, who will have the mount, rode him this morning in a good stripped mile and three-quarters' spin, and I am prepared to see him a fighting factor.

The Hon. George Lambton sent last year's third, West Wicklow, a rousing pace gallop of one mile and a quarter. He has failed to win in several of his races.

There is no trainer here that has experienced the bad luck that B. Jarvis has had this season, but the tide must turn, and it may be at Goodwood. When Tippets ran for the Princess of Wales's Stakes here he could not act on the firm going, but no horse could have moved better than he did this morning in a good mile and a half spin with Collingham, Gay Friar and Barrowby, and I shall be prepared to see him run well for the Gordon Stakes.

It was a rattling stripped gallop that Estate Duty, Heremon, Antiquary and Apperley were given over one mile. The last-named pair went well, and I am expecting to see win the Craven Stakes on Thursday, while Antiquary's chance in the Drayton Handicap is an excellent one.

Darling subjected Nitakrit, Dick Bush, Ardglass, Tullycross, Leopardus, Yenna and Oletta to a good stripped mile and a quarter spin, and Oletta moved well.

Mr. Anthony de Rothschild witnessed Pollux (Perryman) have the best of Jenkins' Ear, Postboy and Homer in a good five furlong spin.

has missed several engagements in view of the Prince of Wales's Stakes, an event he should win.

Although

ALIGHT

(Perryman) was going by himself in a good mile and a quarter spin, he relished his work, and I fancy his chance for the Chesterfield Cup on the final day at Goodwood.

Whitaker's Stewards' Cup candidate, acquitted himself well in a good stripped six furlongs spin. The Tout, going with him the first four furlongs and Paddy Town the last three. In my opinion he has an excellent chance for Tuesday's important sprint.

GAELIC GAMES.

BRILLIANT CORK HURLERS.

A TIPPERARY RECOVERY AT THURLES.

(BY PAT'O.)

CORK .... 3-5 TIPPERARY 2-3

At Thurles yesterday before 30,000 spectators the Cork hurlers showed an unexpected return to their 1928-9 form against a fast and fit Tipperary team. Cork, playing a sound, cohesive game, held mastery throughout. Leading by three goals to one at half-time, their ball control sent them further in front, and their grand back line weathered Tipperary's stormy attacks in a fast fourth quarter of an hour.

The fast, dry ground may have proved the deciding factor for the Blackrock men (nine of the team) love a fast ball and a true ground. Tipperary's speed and pluck were mastered by Cork's brilliant control and understanding.

The minor match, as a curtain raiser, was far more spectacular. Here Tipperary's long lead was reduced to level terms in the last few minutes with the score 3-5 (14) to 2-8 (14).

In the Senior match the teams broke evenly. Aherne was wide off Hurley's drive, and Gleeson for Tipperary sent the ball to the Cork square. Kennedy made no mistakes, and close to his toes he shot a ball to the net. This Tipperary lead against the wind roused Cork's forwards. From Clancy's pass P. Aherne dribbled clear to shoot hard out of O'Meara's reach for the balancing score. Howard, Gleeson, Maher and Cahill forced the pace for Tipperary. Hurley and Treacy were closely matched at midfield, with a shade in the Corkman's favour. Then came Coughlan's thrust. The Cork captain was at his best. He crossed to Delea, and P. Aherne bustled his way through for Cork's second. Cork's smoothly moving forwards were through again, and, despite Purcell's, McKenna's and O'Meara's sound defence, they flashed through for a third goal. O'Regan's field-work at centre back was a feature, and Cork deserved their half time lead of two clear goals.

TIPPERARY'S SECOND HALF RALLY.

Facing the wind and sun in the second half, Coughlan's team moved freely. Their captain never hit such fast balls as brought two points, and when Delea got a third, Tipperary seemed well beaten. From a free Gleeson had a point for Tipperary. O'Donoghue replied with another for Cork. Cahill, although closely marked by Larry, got away for a Tipperary point.

Tipperary fought every inch of the way in the last session, and had Cork's backs been less firm they would have been snowed under, so fierce was the home team's attacking. Madden, O'Connell and Collins paid tribute to O'Mahony's training. Purcell was immense, and Hurley, on the Cork side, drove back balls further than they came. It was a sterling finish.

Murphy slipped past repeatedly, and the big throng were on their toes when hard earned scores came from Keane (point) and Leahy (goal). Cork's margin was dwindling, but too slowly to affect their solid lead, and a severe, clean game ended in Cork's favour. They meet Waterford in the Munster final, and should the weather suit them they should meet the Galway-Leix v. Kilkenny winners in the final.

MR. PARKINSON'S TREBLE.

LATE RACING A SUCCESS AT LIMERICK JUNCTION.

There was a very fair attendance at Limerick Junction for the late afternoon meeting on Saturday, and the programme of seven races afforded enjoyable sport under genial conditions. Mr. J. P. Hartigan is to be congratulated on the success attending the first meeting for which he acted in the capacity of manager. There were excellent fields for all the races, and the successes of five favourites helped considerably towards making the outing an enjoyabe one for most of those present. Mr. J. J. Parkinson carried off the chief honours, horses trained at Maddenstown Lodge winning three races, all ridden by M. Barrett.

Irish Light, a winner of three steeplechases early in the season, put up a good performance by winning the Achtoi Hurdle Race, carrying 14lb. more than he carried when winning the corresponding race at the June meeting. It was a particularly good finish, and Mr. H. J. Delmege, one of the best of our amateur riders, put in very strong work to get Irish Light home a head in front of Fatherland. Orbell, who was favourite, ran in disappointing style, and Sun Flame could not be induced to put in the finishing work which enabled him to win the Ulster Hurdle Race at the Maze.

AMATEUR RIDER'S ENTERPRISE.

Mr. Parkinson's run of successes began when Roman Citizen carried off the Stratford Plate, beating among others the well-backed Auld Stock. Film Fan, carrying Mrs. F. Blacker's colours, won the Tetratema Plate after a great set to with Alone, who was ridden by her owner, Sir Ernest Goff. There are people inclined to scoff at the idea of an amateur opposing professionals in a five furlongs race, but it is such sporting types that have built up racing into the position it holds, and to our mind it would be for the still betterment of racing if we had more amateurs of the enterprising description of Sir Ernest Goff.

Battle of Killiecrankie, contrary to expectations, ran in the Soldennis Plate instead of the Spion Kop Plate, but again disappointed, and apparently is not the good horse he was supposed to be. The race was won by Lebanon in somewhat easy style from Grange Lass and Nonna. Philip's Fancy, favoured by having the assistance of M. Prendergast, who can still claim the 5lb. apprentice allowance and is riding as well as most of the fully-fledged jockeys, won the Blandford Plate from a big field, which included such useful horses as Priory Prince and Golden Patriot.

A BROTHER TO DRINTYRE WINS.

The Maddenstown treble was completed when Storm Signal, a slightly better favourite than Commanding Eagle, won the Beresford Plate.

Drinwood, an own brother to Drintyre, bred by his owner, Mr. R. Kenny, at Roscrea, had an easy task to dispose of a moderate lot of horses in the Spion Kop Plate. Details :—

NATIONAL PURSE HEATS.

MID CLARE'S STYLISH PERFORMANCE.

Jack Knows, Swift White Chief and Manly Mover were the respective winners of the three semi-finals in the National Purse at Shelbourne Park on Saturday night. The first-named put up the best performance, doing 30.64 seconds, against the 30.87 by Swift White Chief and 30.91 seconds by Manly Mover, and it is pretty certain that the son of Cahera Boy will take a lot of beating in the final.

Frontier Star was a rather lucky winner of the Shelbourne Hurdle, as Leiotrichous was leading and looked a certain winner when he came a purler at the final obstacle. Mid Clare gave a stylish performance in winning the Celtic Hurdle, and never left his supporters in the least anxiety. Details:—

SWIMMING

THE PEMBROKE CLUB GALA.

REMARKABLE DIVING DISPLAY.

For the Pembroke Swimming Club gala at the Blackrock Baths last Saturday the enclosure was packed.

The programme far exceeded anything in the line ever attempted by a swimming club in this country, and it was gratifying that the enterprise of the club should have been so well rewarded, the function being a great success.

The principal item, of course, was the diving of Mr. Peter Desjardins, the champion of the world, whose performances on the springboard and the top stage were amazing, thrill succeeding thrill as he progressed through an exceedingly generous list of feats, that included every known dive. Some were of an order that made one wonder how they came even to be thought out, and all were executed with the most perfect grace and precision. He gave exhibitions of the swallow, back, front pike, back pike, one and a half somersault, half gainor, full gainor, one and a half gainor, back somersault (lay out), back one and a half somersault (tuck), full twist, pike reverse, back one and a half somersault, two and a half front somersault, prohibition, one and a half somersault with full twist, and several "silly" dives, which were highly diverting and ingenious.

His most thrilling dive was the one, and a half somersault, with full twist, a feat of so much difficulty that it is quite easy to understand that it has been accomplished by only three other divers in the world. Mr. Desjardins obliged with two dives of this variety, both executed with brilliant skill. No exhibition approaching it has ever been seen in this country, and he fully merited the ovation at the close.

SQUADRON CHAMPIONSHIPS.

The rest of the programme, although of exceptional merit, was somewhat dwarfed by the feats of Mr. Desjardins. The Ladies' and Men's Squadron Championships provided three excellent races. The Pembroke ladies won the first of this series in fine style, leading throughout, by two yards from Dublin, the holders.

The Dublin University Club was to the fore in the Men's Squadron Championships, winning both the senior and junior events, thus putting up a remarkably good performance.

The visit of the famous London club, Otters, was another big attraction. The visitors were opposed by Pembroke in two individual races and by a selected team in a relay. They won each without difficulty, and showed themselves to be finished exponents of swimming. In the Water-Polo match against a selected side, Otters gave a splendid display, their combination being superior to that of the local team, who were, perhaps, a little flattered in holding them to a draw, a result that was achieved by strong individual play rather than concerted action.

The handicap events were well supported with entries, six heats being necessary for the ladies' 50 metres.

EAST PIER GALA.

An immense crowd assembled at Kingstown yesterday, to watch Mr. Desjardins. Although the water was cold, Mr. Desjardins gave a lengthy exhibition, and, as on Saturday, received an ovation.

The Otter Swimming Club, London, figured in two very attractive items—a Squadron Race with a selected Sandycove team, and a Water Polo match. The visitors won both on their merits, but Sandycove put up a splendid fight in Water Polo, being only defeated by the odd goal of seven, scored by Houldon near full-time.

NOVICES' CUP FINAL POSTPONED.

Rain fell in torrents just after the start of the Novices' Cup final at the All-Ireland Club, Phœnix Park, on Saturday, and the match had to be postponed till Thursday next. They had just finished the first chukkar, and there was no score. In an earlier match Donnybrook beat Dunshaughlin by 5 goals to 3.

DONNYBROOK 5, DUNSHAUGHLIN 3.

In a few minutes Dunshaughlin were pressing, and Herr von Dehn shot wide. Then Mr. Howard got away in a gallop from midfield, and wound up with a goal. When Dunshaughlin got down in the second chukkar Mr. Ormsby scored, and quickly added two more goals. Before the change Mr. Malone reduced his side's arrears. In the third period Captain Arnott, who cut in for a chukkar, scored. Then Mr. Howard obtained the lead for Donnybrook. In the final period Mr. Howard registered the fifth for his side.

WILSON'S SECOND WIN AT PRESTWICK.

John Wilson (Prestwick St. Nicholas) beat Andrew Jamieson, junior (Pollok) by 2 and 1 in the final of the Scottish Amateur Championship at Prestwick last Saturday.

The match was decided at the last two holes. The players were square at the twenty-seventh, and after Wilson had taken the lead at the next and lost his advantage at the twenty-ninth, Jamieson won the thirty-first. Once again the match was square—at the thirty-second—and after a half at the thirty-third, Wilson won the next two for the match.

NURMI TO RUN AT GLASGOW.

HELSINGFORS, Saturday.

Paavo Nurmi, who last night broke the world's two mile record by doing it in 9 mins. 59 3-5 secs., has been granted permission to compete in Scotland.

The Glasgow Rangers had invited him to participate in their sports at Ibrox Park on the 31st July and 1st August, but it was dubious whether the Finnish Athletic Association would grant him the necessary permission.

Nurmi will attempt to lower his two mile figures still further, and also knock off several seconds from the four mile record which he made in 1924 and which stands at 19 mins. 15 3-5 secs.

France retained the Davis Cup for the fifth year in succession, when they defeated Great Britain at Paris by three matches to two. The results of the last two singles played yesterday were:—

H. W. Austin (Great Britain) beat J. Borotra (France)—7-5, 6-3, 3-6, 7-5.

H. Cochet (France) beat F. J. Perry (Great Britain)—3-4, 1-6, 9-7, 6-3.

The full result, therefore, is as follows:—

H. Cochet beat H. W. Austin—3-6, 11-9, 6-2, 6-4; beat F. J. Perry—6-4, 1-6, 9-7, 6-3.

J. Borotra lost to Perry—6-4, 8-10, 0-6, 6-4, 4-6; lost to Austin—5-7, 3-6, 6-3, 5-7.

Cochet and J. Brugnon beat G. P. Hughes and C. H. Kingsley—6-1, 5-7, 6-3, 8-6.

PARIS, Sunday.

Britain's greatest chance to win world's lawn tennis honours came with the decision of the last two singles matches in the challenge round of the Davis Cup to-day. The British team, which had come through from the first round chiefly owing to its esprit de corps and staunch determination, had already done enough, even if they lost the Cup, to put England a close second to France in the long list of tennis-playing nations.

The opening match between Austin and Borotra was anxiously watched by France in the hope that Borotra would ensure a French victory by beating Austin.

The courts had recovered from yesterday's soaking, but there was a little rain as Austin and Borotra came out. Opening with service, Borotra rapidly collected three games off the reel, tempting Austin to overhit by sudden sorties to the net, just as Austin had made up his mind about the stroke. The result was that Austin had no time to change direction. His only resource was to hit harder, and he was often yards out. Borotra was twice foot-faulted, once on his second service. He needed all his speed about the court to meet the relentless attack which Austin, by his long driving game, maintained with a fine sense of direction. The Englishman was thrice trapped into placing the ball into the empty left court, which had purposely been left as a bait. Each time the Basque's racket cut out winners on the volley from his mistakes.

A FINE RECOVERY.

Borotra reached set point and advantage in the ninth game, but his backhand, on which Austin played some of his hardest shots, was unequal to the pace, and Austin won back to 4-5, and then 0-15 in the tenth game. Borotra, on his own service, then twice had 'vantage, but Austin's peerless placing, and his recovery of the length he had hitherto vainly searched for, gave him the tenth to square at 5-5. He now had Borotra hitting out by cleverly placed shots, and he then went ahead for the first time in the set at 6-5. A beautiful lob from a terrific smash fell a foot inside the court, with Borotra chasing it frantically. He lifted it overhead well out of court, and Austin was at 40-15 and set point. The game went to deuce, and then Austin won 'vantage with a glorious shot, jumping feet into the air. Borotra was twice footfaulted, and he looked appealingly at the footfault umpire, and then at the crowd. He was worried by his failure to hold Austin, and instead of being the happy warrior of old, he was shaking his head, lifting his hands in despair, and pulling at his beret as if seeking inspiration from his old shako. Austin was a poker face, but he had the set at 7-5.

THE RAIN APPEARS.

Austin knew Borotra's volleying powers, and just took them in his stride, allowing Borotra to get to the net and then hitting the ball at a terrific pace, so that the Basque's timing was often all out of gear. Austin, on service, took the first game of the second set. The promise of rain was fulfilled, and the match continued in an unpleasant drizzle, which made the court slippery. Austin led at 2-1 his game being beautifully balanced. The rain was drenching both players, and with Borotra leading 3-2, Mr. Roper Barratt spoke to Austin as to whether he wanted to go on. Mr. Redelsberger, the umpire told Austin to continue. Mr. Barratt seemed to signal to the umpire that it was a matter for the non-playing captains, but, nevertheless, play was resumed. After the next game, in which both players slithered about the court, the match was stopped, with the score 3-3.

The impression was that Austin had the match well in hand, he had only to let Borotra beat himself and the match was won. After a ten minutes' wait the rain passed over, and Austin was soon leading 4-3 on service, and took the next game to love. His lobbing, though used only in emergency, quite often got him out of many scrapes, even spring-heeled Borotra being unable to get them back. Serving again, Austin led at 30-0, but a double fault after he had driven out made it 30 all. Austin reached set point with a typical forehand drive, which Borotra put into the net, and won a two set lead on his next crosscourt shot, which went to Borotra's feet.

AUSTIN'S GUILE.

The intensity of Austin's attack increased as he drew away in the third set, and it was obvious that Borotra's chance was hopeless. Austin took the first game and won vantage in the second, but lost it on the first lob that Borotra had been able to smash. Then he netted a cross-court drive, to allow Borotra to come up to 1-1. Austin's coolness and discretion was that of a man playing well within himself. He left the spectacular play to Borotra, and just concentrated on making every shot a move in a deeply-laid scheme. Borotra could hardly understand this, and was often puzzled for a reason why he had lost a rally.

Austin led at 3-1, and Borotra once looked in a mute appeal to the gods who had denied him a close volley which hit the net cord. He pressed hard from the net, however, and won the fifth game on his service. Fed with lobs, which were carefully but effectively smashed, Austin led 40-15, but was pulled back by cleverly intercepted passing shots, and lost the game on a beautiful twist smash of Borotra's, which made the Frenchman 3-3. Austin was down 0-40 in the next against service, and the Borotra of old won a brilliant game point with a beautifully steered short volley, while face to face with the Englishman at the net. Borotra changed rackets as soon as he got the lead with this game. The rain still persisted and shots on the run were difficult owing to the precarious foothold. Borotra now attacked fiercely, to the delight of the crowd. He forced Austin to lob and led at 5-3. Austin looked like having to concede the set when the Basque serving led at 40-30 in the ninth game. With a great dash to the net on a service Borotra made Austin hit his passing shot out, and the players went in for a ten minutes' rest, amid prolonged cheers for the Basque, who took the set at 6-3. Austin was then leading by two sets to one.

BRILLIANT LOBBING.

Although a heavy drizzle had been falling it ceased before play was resumed. Borotra took Austin's service for a 1 love lead, and had Austin on the run retrieving by swift drives; but Austin's passing shots skidded down the sidelines and made the game one all. Austin lobbed a beautiful winner over the Basque's head and went to 2-1 on the pace of his driving. Austin's passing shots were gradually gaining the width they had lacked, but it was very difficult to keep them out of the way of Borotra's racket. Austin again lobbed successfully, but the crowd had to be pacified by the umpire, who announced through the loud speaker that his shot on the baseline was "tres bon."

Austin led at 4-2, and with Borotra volleying vainly from close to the net, he lobbed another one which Borotra left with another despairing gesture before it passed him, knowing it was a winner. He was suffering, and he showed it. Lacoste embraced him consolingly as he crossed over after winning the seventh for 3-4.

A sensation followed. The Basque volleyed for 30-0, but protested vigorously that he had touched the ball twice in the stroke. The crowd would not hear of it, and Borotra had an argument with M. Redelsberger by gesture, which resulted, amid counter protests by the crowd, in the score being put back to 15-0.

THE WINNING POINT.

Borotra, however, levelled at 4-4, and the crowd was content. Austin served two doubles to give Borotra the lead at 5-4. The crowd cheered, but Borotra silenced them and endeavoured to say that it was most unsporting to cheer negative successes like that. Borotra then served a double and Austin went to 40-15. Lobbed back from the net, he had himself to lob, and his stroke was killed, but he won the game for 5 all. Austin had been checked in his net attacks, but he came up in the next game and regained the lead at 6-5. Austin had a drink brought out to him at this critical juncture, but it was only water. Borotra went to 30-love. Austin fought back to 30-all, and got match point. Borotra rushed madly to the net on his first return of service. Austin cleverly lobbed over his head, and seeing the hopelessness of getting the ball, Borotra swung round, shouting "You win," snatched off his beret and congratulated his conqueror.

England were now 2-all in matches, and the issue of the prize depended on Perry against Cochet.

Meanwhile the rain continued, and there were some doubts whether this match would be played. Every human eye, and scores of artificial ones from the cameras, were trained on Cochet and Perry as they came out. Perry dwarfed Cochet as they stood together at the net being photographed. The court had been swept and duly sprinkled to enable the players to get a foothold.

PERRY v. COCHET.

Perry began with service, and slid, rather than ran, across the baseline. A long rally of brilliant drives ended in Perry smashing home a winner with tremendous power. Twice, and thrice, he slipped badly, the rain meanwhile pouring down. It was farcical tennis. Cochet even had to get a ball boy to come out with towels, so that his racket handle could be dried. Perry won the opening game in spite of perilous stumbles and staggers in the moment of making his strokes.

Cochet was driving short, and this brought Perry to the net, where some wonderful passing shots beat him. He stood at deuce in the second game, which was full of long cross court rallies. He won 'vantage, but was kept on the run, and Cochet took the game for 1-1. Cochet gritted his teeth at many shots and showed he was feeling the strain, but his placements were deadly accurate and beautifully judged. Perry must have run a mile in the first two games.

The rain still poured down and the game still continued. Both had to wipe their rackets and faces after Perry, coming in for a fine drive, won the third for a 2-1 lead. A love game for Perry spurred the tense and eager crowd from their silence to applaud, and Perry acknowledged this by going to 40-0 on service, and won the game to 15 for a 4-1 advantage. There was another shout from the crowd when Perry left what was obviously a bad service, waiting for the shout of "Fault," which never came. The crowd shouted for Perry. Cochet came up to 2-4. The atmosphere was electrical. Perry scored a great driving winner which was given out. Cochet put the ball high into the air and out, but the umpire made Perry serve another ball, and Cochet's gesture came to nothing. Cochet won this strange game.

FARCICAL CONDITIONS.

At this point even the crowd protested against the rain. The players went off to wipe their rackets and faces again, and when they came back they were met with shouts, "Ah, pourquoi, pourquoi." Perry played his racket banjo-like to protest against another line decision, which made Cochet 30-love, amid louder protests than ever from the crowd. He led 40-0 and won the game to service for 4-4. Perry's luck was right out.

The game was becoming a volleying battle. In the midst of it Perry went over to a spectator in a box and, pointing a minatory finger at him as he walked towards him, spoke to him severely. He had evidently shouted when Perry was about to make the shot which lost him the game. There were loud boos from the crowd, but the culprit, who wore a beret, only smiled. Cochet reached set point to 15 at 5-4 and 40-15. He took the set at 6-4 with a base line lob as Perry came in.

Aceing Cochet with service, Perry took a love game to open the second set. Perry won the next game to love by forceful driving on the run, which harassed Cochet in his placing. He increased his lead to 3-0 and then 4-0, winning both games to 30, the latter in soaking rain, in which the crowd under their umbrellas looked like rows of gigantic coloured mushrooms. The crowd began to melt away as the rain tumbled down in its best British style, but Perry, struggling to keep his feet, led 5-1 before play was stopped

PERRY IMPETUOUS.

The persistence of the authorities in playing this match out against such appalling conditions was amazing. The court was patched up with sand and was swept hardly before the puddles had subsided, and Perry reopened the match on service. A great passing shot gave him set at 6-1.

Perry's passing shots were gems, but he seemed impetuous, and lost the opening game of the third set on his mistakes. He pinned Cochet down to the base line with a string of hard drives, and then volleyed the winner to level at 1-1.

Perry's range-finding far exceeded Cochet's, but Cochet shortened his length to make Perry come up. A cross-court drive sent Cochet flying to the corner, and Perry put the return into an empty court, for the fourth game. Cochet kept raising his hands in despair as he made simple mistakes off Perry's drives, and the Englishman went on to lead by 3-2, winning the fifth game against service. Perry's tennis was magnificent. Cochet was all out, and he needed to be. He took the lead at 4-3, after deuce had been called in the seventh game. The rain had so far held off during this spell of play, but it began to drizzle again.

A TENSE BATTLE.

Winning the eighth by finely-angled deep drives, Perry became 4-4. His shots to Cochet's feet worried the Frenchman. Cochet pulled up from love 40 to deuce, and won vantage and game from two sound passing shots, to lead 5-4. Every point Cochet won had to be extracted by deep cunning. Perry levelled on service at 5-5. Failing to lob Cochet back, Perry lost the eleventh and came to a very critical phase in the tie. He won the service to 15, and gained the chance of recovering. His whip from corner to corner frequently beat the Frenchman. Cochet looked very grim, but Perry, hitting out from an attempted baseline shot when Cochet was in a hopeless position, lost the next game to be down at 6-7. Perry waved his racket to the spectators to tell them to be quiet, and then went on to take a love game off his service for 7-7.

Perry played the game of a tired man, as well he might, in the fifteenth, which Cochet won. Perry got 40-30, but lost the point, netting two easy drives in what seemed to be undue haste for winners, and Cochet took the set 9-7. The Frenchman was hailed with prolonged sheers, renewed again and again, and he had to wait before he could serve in the first game of the fourth set. He played as if he had been relieved from a great strain.

THE LAST SET.

Perry lost his service game, and the score was one-all, Cochet's retrieving bordering on the miraculous. The Frenchman cut nine out of every ten returns. Perry took the lead again with 2-1, and in spite of bad luck with net cords and his third mistake in leaving a doubtful service, which was allowed as an ace, he led again at 3-2. His tennis, which even caused the non-playing captains to rise in their chairs, won for Cochet a 4-3 lead, both men first volleying and then driving from every conceivable angle. Twice in the eighth game Perry was passed with cross-court shots, and Cochet at 5-3 had all but retained the Cup for France; but he seemed to have saved his most dazzling form for this last game, and produced wonderful winners from nowhere.

As he reached match point the crowd had to be silenced, as they looked like becoming hysterical. They obeyed humbly, but as Perry netted a speeding drive of Cochet's, they broke loose. Umbrellas, cushions, hats, and newspapers showered the arena, which looked more like a rubbish heap as, ankle-deep in the refuse, the players and captains, together with the officials, stood to attention while the "Marseillaise" and the British National Anthem were played. Another tornado of cheering broke out, and some few adventurous spirits tore across the court and surrounded Cochet, who was immediately wrapped up by a host of protectors and hurried to the sanctuary of the dressing-room.

In the doubles on Saturday Cochet and Brugnon were just too severe for Hughes and Kingsley, though the latter put up a great fight. Brugnon was the best of the four, his lobbing and placing being perfect.

THREE TITLES FOR McGUIRE.

CHAMPIONSHIP FINALS AT FITZWILLIAM.

E. A. McGuire realised his hopes on Saturday, at Fitzwilliam, when he won the Irish singles title for the first time, and concluded a week of personal triumphs by also carrying off the men's and mixed doubles championships, partnered by C. F. Scroope and Miss Fleming respectively. This was the first occasion he had ever competed in a mixed event.

He has undoubtedly proved his claim to be easily the outstanding player in the country, and in the whole three events he only dropped one set. His tennis had been good throughout the week, but on Saturday he reached the top of his form, and was far too good for H. F. Cronin, whom he beat 6-2, 6-2, 6-3. The latter, strangely enough, was the aggressor most of the time, but in his efforts to produce a master shot against an opponent who was as steady as a rock, he made many mistakes. He hit some glorious forehand drives, but when he had a comparatively easy half-court shot he very frequently overhit in going for his winner. His back-hand, too, was rather unsound, while he served a lot of double faults, a most unusual failing for him. Cronin has done wonders for a man with so little first-class experience, but on Saturday he would have had to produce fireworks to worry McGuire. The latter was sound on either wing, good overhead and severe on service; any points he lost were winning drives by his opponent.

In the women's final Mrs. Blair White regained the title she won in 1928, wearing down a more versatile opponent in Miss Stoker by her perfect length and clever placing. I have seldom seen a player consistently place her drives within a couple of feet of the base-line as Mrs. Blair White did, and she also kept swinging her drives from side to side. Miss Stoker played very well at the start, but as the game went on she began to make mistakes, while she was generally passed at the net. She began well, capturing Mrs. Blair White's service to lead 3-1, but when she dropped her own to let Mrs. Blair White level at 3-all she had lost her chance.

The men's doubles was a disappointing match. McGuire and Scroope do not seem very happy together, but they were too good for T. G. McVeagh and V. Allman Smith on Saturday. Neither of the latter pair was at his best, McVeagh lacking sting on his ground shots, an occasional, angled smash being his cleverest efforts, while Allman Smith made many mistakes on the low volleys. McGuire was the best of the four, his overhead work being excellent at times.

The mixed final was played after a heavy shower had turned the court into a mud-heap; yet once more McGuire gave a great display, his smashing, with his feet sliding from under him, being quite extraordinarily good, while he was also extremely active. His partner, Miss Fleming, gave him sound support. The women's doubles saw Miss H. Wallis and Miss Stoker gain a good win over Mrs. Blair White and Miss Fleming. Miss Stoker's interceptions at the net were cleverly timed, while Miss Wallis's passing shots were in her best vein. Results:—

ATHLETICS.

AN IRISH HAMMER RECORD.

IRELAND'S SEVEN POINTS VICTORY OVER SCOTLAND.

By Our Special Correspondent.

The critics made out the Irish team to be just superior to the Scottish side; we might, they thought, win last Saturday's contest at Croke Park by one event. Whether the absence of F. P. Reid accounted for the difference is a moot point; but the Irishmen asserted a definite superiority, and the margin was seven points—twenty to thirteen. The points were scored as follow, on the basis of two for a win and one for a second:—

	Ireland.	Scotland.
100 Yards	1	2
220 Yards	0	3
440 Yards	2	1
Half Mile	0	3
One Mile	2	1
Four Miles	0	3
Hammer	3	0
High Jump	3	0
Long Jump	3	0
Shot	3	0
Hurdles	3	0

At the dinner to the teams and officials in the Central Hotel, Exchequer street, General O'Duffy, the President of the National Athletic and Cycling Association of Ireland, laid emphasis on the point that, while the Irishmen were delighted with the victory, it was not so much the result of the contest that mattered as the effect which such meetings with Scotland are certain to have on the International situation and Irish athletics. We are passing through a critical period in the history of Irish athletics. There is a big "push" on to deprive the Association of the position and status to which it succeeded on its formation; and an intensive crusade is being waged by General O'Duffy and the Association for the revival of the sport in the country. The resurrection of this contest after the lapse of many years cannot fail to achieve much good for the country at the Councils of the International Board; but what is of, perhaps, more importance, it will give to athletics in Ireland a stimulus that will be reflected in the achievements of our athletes after a few years.

WHAT OF THE FUTURE?

To one who remembers the old-time meetings at Ballsbridge, and who can recall the palmy days of Irish athletics, and the Conneffs, Kielys, Bulgers, Leahys, Careys, Horgans, Mulligans, Hardings, Flanagans, and a host of other Irish stars of a dim past, this meeting on Saturday brought back many memories. And scanning the big company, noting the enthusiasm and the impartiality of the onlookers, listening to the mighty roar from the stands when W. Nolan forged past T. M. Riddell to unexpectedly win the mile—a roar which was repeated when the hammer thrown by Dr. O'Callaghan was seen to dig itself into the ground well forward of the purple flag which marked the distance of the Irish record made by himself, and when P. C. Moore, in a desperate and last despairing finish, passed out Ian Borland in the quarter, one came to the very definite conclusion that there is a strong hope for Irish athletics. We have the people with us in the effort to infuse a new life into the sport, and we have the material that goes to the making of champions. It will depend on ourselves whether we take full advantage of our opportunities and make full use of the latent talent.

THE HALL-MARK OF THE AMATEUR.

It was an eventful contest, fought in the true sporting spirit which is the hall-mark of the real amateur sportsman. Of what is commonly described as outstanding features there were many, but they were not confined to one side. Scotland was really out of it in the field events, but she put up some capital performances on the track, notably those of L. Murdoch, who won the 100 yards and the 220 yards, and T. M. Riddell, who was successful in the half-mile and finished second to Nolan in the mile, to completely collapse after he had crossed the line ten yards behind the Irishman. These achievements thrilled the crowd; and then there was the remarkable running of J. F. Wood in the four miles. He went off at such a pace that no one thought him capable of sticking it, but the further he went the more he widened the gap, and but for the track being so heavy he must have done splendid time. As a matter of fact, the condition of the turf was more treacherous than it looked, and the handicap where the men in the field events were concerned was a rather severe one.

IRELAND'S GOOD START.

Scotland led off with a victory in the half-mile, in which Riddell beat the Scots' second string, C. M. Wells—the latter came on for J. P. Laidlaw—by two yards. Watching the race very closely through glasses, we would not say that it was deliberate, but S. M'Call was distinctly thrown out of his stride, after coming round the 220 yards' bend, through being heavily elbowed, but for which he must have made a much better fight of it. The time, 2 mins. 2 3-5 secs., was not bad on the sodden track.

Ireland balanced the points with a first and second in the shot, which O'Callaghan won with 46ft. 8¾ins., Guard Healy, in his best form, getting in one of 45ft. 6½ins.; and thence came a magnificent 100 yards. Thirty yards from the tape Murdoch (sub. for Reid), A. D. Turner and W. P. Burke were almost level, with the Irishman sandwiched between the Scots. As they burst for the tape, it looked as if we had lost the three points, but Burke beat Turner, and was himself beaten only by inches in one of the finest hundreds run on this track.

Ireland increased her lead in the high jump, as the Scots could do nothing better than S. M. Craig's 5ft. 7ins. O'Callaghan and Guard O'Connor then had a duel for the first place, but whereas the Corkman stopped at 5ft. 10ins., O'Connor went on to clear 6ft. in his last jump—a splendid performance, considering the slippery take off.

Murdoch and Turner (for Reid) had matters all their own way in the 220 yards, Moore and R. T. Bryan being well whacked down the straight, the margin in Murdoch's favour over Turner being inches; but again the home country asserted itself in the hammer. The distances were not measured until the last throw had been taken, but the third time O'Callaghan was well in front of the Irish record, and with a subsequent attempt he also beat it. His distance was 176ft. 10 ins., his previous best being 170ft. 7¾ins. W. T. Britton, whose style impressed the onlookers, secured another point for the home country with a second, with 154ft. 2ins.

A THRILLING MILE.

At one period in the race for the Mile it seemed as if we were about to go down badly. For three laps the Irish champion, M.T. Murphy, and T. M. Riddell were battling out a sprinting duel, and entering the last lap Murphy again went out from the Scottish crack. It was obvious that by then he had shot his bolt, but just as Riddell had stalled off the attentions of the Irish title-holder Nolan went for him. It was a feeler, and apparently Nolan was satisfied, as he allowed the Scot to get in front directly after. Then Nolan set about his job in great style, and at the 220 yards mark was leading by fully four yards. Murphy dropped out, and Nolan, coming away with, so to speak, a wet sail, won by ten yards in 4 mins. 30 3-5 secs. A thrilling race, indeed.

Heavy rain came on shortly after the Long Jump had started, and there was a delay. P. Anglim won it with 22 ft. 5½ ins., T. O'Connor taking the second point with 22 ft. 1¼ ins., P. Barklas being the best of the Scots with 20 ft. 6½ ins. In the Four Miles none of them could make the slightest impression on J. F. Wood, the Scotsman leading from pistol to tape, and winning by fully sixty yards in 20 mins. 8 3-5 secs.

R. M. Tisdall, of Cambridge University, took his place in the Hurdles with T. D. Phelan for Ireland, and they fought out a fine finish; but the University College man, to the astonishment of all, almost beat the pistol, and was over the first flight before Tisdall got near it, thanks to his gaining fully two yards at the start. With six hurdles cleared Tisdall was almost level with him, but with his ankles not quite strong Tisdall failed to give of his best, and Phelan won by fully three yards in 15 3-5 secs.

The last event was the Quarter, in which Moore achieved a brilliant victory. C. M. Wells deputised for Reid and H. R. Davies came on for Ireland vice J. O. Collins. Davies set a good pace for Moore to the back stretch, and at the 220 yards mark the Collegian joined issue with Ian Borland. As he showed in front the crowd yelled. Coming down the straight Moore seemed to be wavering, but he pulled himself together in grand style, and holding on grimly and full of running he beat Borland by five yards. Details:—

THE DINNER.

GENERAL O'DUFFY THANKS SCOTLAND.

Welcoming the Scottish team and officials at the dinner in the Central Hotel, General O'Duffy said it was particularly happy that the contest between Scotland and Ireland should be resurrected after 17 or 18 years. It would, so to speak, cement the bond of friendship between the two countries. Scotland and Ireland had much in common—their music, games, dances, and customs. It was particularly happy that he should have that opportunity, the first he had had, of expressing the appreciation of the N.A.C.A. for the sympathy and support that they had received from the Scottish Athletic Association in their international difficulties. Not even in Ireland was there a greater champion of the cause of the N.A.C.A. than the Hon. Secretary of the Scottish Association, Mr. George Hume, who convened the meeting in Crewe to see if they could solve their difficulties in Ireland, and he followed it up by the meeting in Dundalk in a sincere desire to seek to help athletics.

From what he (General O'Duffy) had seen of the Scottish officials, athletes, and supporters of Scottish athletics he could see that in their hearts every one of them was behind George Hume in supporting the N.A.C.A. He felt that the justice of their cause had permeated the hearts of the officials and athletes of Scotland, and his Association, feeling that it was in the right, intended to pursue the cause to the end. Ireland had a glorious athletic past; Irishmen had figured prominently in the Olympic records, and he believed that they had the material to raise the flag again. They had been very successful in their campaign to revive Irish athletics, but the greatest fillip athletics had received in Ireland was that day's contest; not so much by reason of the result of the match as on account of the spirit of good fellowship and sportsmanship which characterised the event; not so much for the mere winning of it as what it would mean to them in continuing their campaign in the country. It was the intention to make the contest between Scotland and Ireland an annual event, and it would be the principal athletic fixture in this country. He coupled with the toast of "Our Guests" the name of Mr. Gilbert, Vice-President of the Scottish Association.

Mr. Gilbert, responding, said that regarding the relations between Scotland and Ireland, it was not a question of sympathy, but of commonsense. If they left this question to the athletes, he was quite sure it would be settled. He was delighted that the contest had been revived; it was once the happiest and pleasantest meeting of the athletic season. He did not want to say anything regarding Ireland's domestic troubles, as he did not wish to say anything that might prejudice the position or the cause of an amicable settlement.

Mr. McGilton, Secretary, N.A.C.A., gave "Athletics," to which Mr. G. Hume responded. Mr. Riddell, captain of the Scottish team; Dr. O'Callaghan, captain of the Irish team; Mr. Tisdall and Mr. P. Lynch, K.C., also spoke.

CRICKET.

RUNS HARD TO GET AT CASTLE AVENUE.

What promised to be a good sporting finish was spoiled by rain at Castle avenue last Saturday. The wicket was sticky, and runs were hard to get, the average scoring pace being fifty per hour. Batting first, Pembroke occupied the wickets for two hours and forty minutes for 131. Aylward in forty minutes had 3 fours in his 24, but six wickets were down for 69. Pickeman played patiently for an hour for 13, and S. S. Murphy hit up 26 for the last wicket (a six and 2 fours).

With only an hour to bat, Clontarf never looked like getting the runs, and left off with four wickets down for 47. Score:—

BOWLERS' DAY IN THE NORTH.

One of the five matches in the Northern Union League on Saturday—Holywood v. Cliftonville—was not started owing to the ground at Holywood being unplayable. At Armagh, when Lisburn had lost 8 wickets for 52, rain fell so heavily that the match was abandoned.

The only match in Belfast was at Ballynafeigh, where Ulster, without W. G. R. Loughery and the brothers Finlay and Harold Jackson, were too strong for Woodvale. The latter lost five of their wickets for four runs, and were out for 31, H. Morgan taking 5 wickets for 17, and W. McCleery 3 for 10. Ulster passed this total for two wickets, and went on to score 89.

North of Ireland ran up 139 for 8 and declared at Lurgan, R. Alexander getting 47 and J. W. Orr 28. Lurgan were out for 33, Horsley capturing six wickets for 11.

In the match at Comber, North Down made a draw with Waringstown, who batted first and scored 195 for 7 (declared) (W. Irwin 44, and J. Hampton and H. McKenzie 42 each). North Down, 129 (for 8) (T. J. Macdonald 48).

TEMPLE "SIXTY."

MIDDLEMARKER WINS CO. DOWN EVENT.

The annual sixty-two miles road race at The Temple, County Down, which enjoys the distinction of being the oldest event of its kind in Ireland, was descided on Saturday. The popularity of this form of sport in the North of Ireland was indicated by an entry of thirty-four, all of whom took part in the race. P. J. Walls, of Belfast, on a 499 c.c. Rudge, was the scratchman, and he was asked to give starts running out to 18 minutes. He had the misfortune to puncture in the early stages of the race, and the fastest time was done by W. J. McCracken (490 c.c. Norton), who was in receipt of 2 minutes, and averaged a shade over 60 miles an hour for the distance, finishing in fifth place. The handicap was won by one of the middle-markers. W. Rusk, who was rather lightly handicapped with 10 minutes' start from Walls, and, having a trouble-free run, he won by 2 minutes 58 seconds.

A dozen of the starters finished in the following order:—

RACING AT PORTMARNOCK STRAND.

Sixteen thousand people watched the programme of motor car and motor cycle racing, run under the auspices of the Leinster M.C. and L.C.C., at Portmarnock Strand yesterday.

Some of the motor cycle races were most exciting, falls being frequent at the corners, but no one was hurt. The car event also was keenly contested, and, while no untoward incident marked the race, the cornering was impressive and at times thrilling.

J. J. O'Neill made the fastest time of the meeting in winning the 350 c.c. Class of the Ten Miles Championship. T. G. Byrne and C. H. W. Manders were other competitors who rode with skill and dash. Results:—

YACHTING.

RACING AGAINST A TIME LIMIT.

All our sailing clubs have time limits for races, and it was against the working of this rule that yachts and boats virtually were competing on Saturday. The cause of the trouble was the light and flaky wind from about E.S.E., with the extra complications of a very thick haze (of the density of fog at times) and a strong flood tide.

In Dublin Bay the rule won in four cases out of six, the races which it rendered void being those of the 21 Footers and Small Cruisers, plus the two matches of the Seapoint Boat Club. The leading events were those of the 17 Footers and Water Wags. At Howth the finish of the first round of the 17 Footers had to be taken as the finish of the race.

DUBLIN BAY SAILING CLUB.

Had the 21 Footers been stopped at the close of the first round, the placings would have been—Maureen, 1st; Garavogue, 2nd; Oola, 3rd. Hidden in fog, a compass course had to be sailed to pick up the Bar buoy and Bullock mark. At the latter, Maureen led, with Oola next. Garavogue overhauled the latter in harbour, and next the port and starboard rule threw Oola out of the race. The four left in had reached Scotsman's Bay when the time limit operated. It was a case of decided hard luck.

Not having to sail the distance to Bullock and back, the 17 Footers were able to finish, but only four out of seven starters did so. They, too, had to depend upon the compass. What appeared to be an instance of bad luck at the time, helped Echo to win She was not well placed at the start, and was unable to fetch out of harbour as the other six had done. To put herself right, she had to make a tack across the harbour mouth, and this gave her a weather berth and apparently a better wind, the latter being inclined to veer. Anyway she was first at the Bar buoy and at Bullock, and came in 1 min. 4 secs. ahead of Pauline.

Margaret had hard luck in finishing the Cruisers' race 7 mins. 48 secs. outside the time limit. It was a hopeless day for Eileen, but the other did splendidly so long as there was the semblance of a breeze, sufficient, at least, to stem the tide. For well over an hour she was held up motionless off Sandycove.

Not carrying a compass, the eleven Wags which started in their race were in a quandry when the fog enveloped them outside barbour. They had to sail by the wind and the tide, and there was too little of the former and too much of the latter. Some gave up at this period, while the others groped their way along, working the shore as much as possible, and sometimes bumping.

Coquette held a huge lead leaving harbour, made Bullock mark, but could not round it owing to the light airs and the force of the tide stream. Out from the shore at her fifth effort appeared Pansy and Phyllis, and Pansy made the mark in her first attempt to round. Coquette coming next. Coming home, Coquette took the lead again, but it was only momentarily, for Pansy robbed her of it again, and beat her by 31 secs. at the line.

On the whole, it was an unsatisfactory day, but interesting all the same. Details:—

HOWTH SAILING CLUB.

The timings taken at the close of the first round finished the 17-footers' race at Howth on Saturday, the boats not being able to sail the full course of two rounds within the statutory period of 3 hours from the first gun. The real feature of the match was the reappearance of Aura, with Dr. Cecil Boyd once again at the tiller. It is a long time now since this "Seventeen" competed or since Dr. Boyd sailed in club matches. He did splendidly with her so long as the wind lasted, leading the fleet. When the breeze failed—towards the close of the first round—the others closed up, and three were ahead of him as the second (abortive round) was entered on. Finish:—

	H.	M.	S.
Zaida (winner)—Dr. H. H. Poole (2 mins.)	4	55	36
Mimosa (2nd prize)—Mr. R. N. Guinness (2 mins.)	4	56	34

SHAMROCK V. RETIRES.

The Royal Thames Club opened its annual two-day regatta for Solent and International Classes at Ryde last Saturday with a programme of over a dozen events. There was a strong southerly breeze, which made for fairly fast times. In the big class for the T. B. Davis schooner, Westward, was making her first appearance for the season with the King's Britannia, Sir Thomas J. Lipton's Shamrock V., N. H. A. Andrea's Candida, and Mr. Hugh F. Paul's Astra. They sailed 46 miles. Shamrock V. made a bad start, and gave up after the finish of the first round, when she was in an impossible position so far as winning was concerned. Astra also retired. Westward, which got the lead early, kept opening away from Britannia, but just failed to allow the time, the Royal cutter winning by 1 min. Official corrected times for the race were:—

	H.	M.	S.
Britannia (winner)	1	8	8
Westward (2nd prize)	2	0	14
Candida (3rd prize)	1	4	25

SEVERN'S THIRD VICTORY.

Racing for La Coupe de France came to conclusion on Saturday last with a decisive victory for the English yacht, Severn, owned by Mr. R. S. Worth. The matches were sailed under the burgee of the Royal Thames Club, who were the holders. The challenger was Madame V. Heriot's Laile VII., representing France. Severn won the first two matches with ease, but the third was won by Laile VII. On Saturday a fresh south-westerly breeze prevailed, and the defender gained another easy win. Finishing times:—

	H.	M.	S.
Severn	2	28	15
Laile VII.	2	37	3

3,000 MILES RACE.

Nine of the ten yachts which set out from Newport, Rhode Island, at noon on July 4th to race to Plymouth, a distance of nearly 3,000 miles, have reached Plymouth. The only boat due to arrive is the Lismore, which carried away her topmast in mid-Atlantic. When the Hamburg passed close to the Lismore it was decided to tranship two of the crew, as it was feared that, with the voyage being unduly protracted, there might be a shortage of drinking water. They have arrived at Plymouth from Southampton, and are awaiting the arrival of the Lismore.
